Fortas Quits High Court Under Fire

Fortas Business Dealings Probed By AP

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prior to taking his seat on the Supreme Court, Abe Fortas was an officer of a company incorporated by individuals linked with Las Vegas gambling operations. One of the individuals later was indicted for perjury in the Bobby Baker case.

Other officers of the company, Greatamerica Corp., contributed to the $300,000 fund set up to finance a series of lectures by Fortas at American University here last summer. Fortas got half the money.

Greatamerica, a holding company for insurance firms, was the parent company of Texas-based Braniff Airways. In addition to being an officer of Greatamerica, Fortas was, during 1965, a director of Braniff. After he left the company, a spot on the board of directors went to Paul A. Porter, Fortas' former law partner. Porter still held that position last year.

It was last year that the Civil Aeronautics Board and President Johnson granted a lucrative trans-Pacific route to Braniff despite the recommendation of a CAB examiner that Braniff not get any such award.

The CAB chairman who is concerned in the Braniff award is a former member of a Houston law firm with ties to Johnson. These facts were disclosed in an Associated Press investigation of the past business activities of the beleaguered Supreme Court Justice.

Fortas' involvement in the companies can be traced to 1962 when Greatamerica was incorporated in Nevada. The incorporation papers, dated April 27, 1962, list Fortas as the company's vice president, general counsel and a director. Yearly reports filed in Carson City show Fortas remained an officer of Greatamerica until sometime between July 1965 and June 1966. Records for the following year indicate that after Fortas resigned Dennis Lyons assumed Fortas' former positions with the company.

Lyons, an attorney with Arnold Porter, Fortas' former Washington law firm, told AP he became vice president, general counsel and director of Greatamerica in May, 1966. It could not be determined immediately whether Fortas retained his spot with the company until then or had resigned earlier.

Fortas took his seat on the court in October 1965. One of the incorporators of Greatamerica was Clifford A. Jones, Nevada lieutenant governor from 1947-54 and a part owner and then officer of the Thunderbird Hotel in Las Vegas.

The gambling license issued to Jones and a partner in the hotel was revoked by the Nevada Tax Commission in 1965 on grounds that underworld figures had an interest in the hotel. The decision was later overturned by the Nevada Supreme Court.

On Jan. 5, 1966, Jones was indicted for perjury in connection with the grand jury investigation of Bobby Baker, former secretary to Senate Democrats. Baker was indicted the same day for conspiracy, tax evasion and fraudulently converting to his own use nearly $100,000 from California savings and loan executives who thought they were making political contributions.

Jones was named a co-conspirator in that indictment. Baker later was convicted of failing to pay tax on the $100,000. Jones' case has not come to trial.

Fortas was Baker's attorney until Johnson became President in 1963. At that time he withdrew.

Nomination For Successor Not In Sight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon accepted today the resignation of Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas, effective immediately.

Justice Abe Fortas

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Fortas' letter of resignation was received at the White House about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday. He said Chief Justice Earl Warren had telephoned Nixon during the afternoon "to advise the President that a letter of resignation was forthcoming."

Fortas, once nominated as chief justice and under mounting pressure and the threat of impeachment proceedings this week, announced his resignation earlier this morning.

Nixon discussed the Fortas matter this morning, Ziegler reported, with Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and John D. Ehrlichman, White House counsel.

The White House declined to make public the text of the letter of resignation or of Nixon's reply, signed in midmorning.

Asked why the resignation was not announced Wednesday night, Ziegler said Nixon had yet to sign a letter of acceptance.

Questioned about when the President might nominate a successor, Ziegler said, "I have no idea."

Fortas, the target of severe criticism for accepting and returning 11 months later a $20,000 fee from the family foundation of financier Louis E. Wolfson, sent President Nixon his letter of resignation Wednesday night.

Fortas also sent Chief Justice Earl Warren—the man he once was named to succeed—a letter of explanation about the fee from the foundation. The announcement of Fortas' actions was made by a court spokesman.

Wolfson, a former Fortas law client, now is serving a jail sentence for violating federal securities laws. The fee was given Fortas while Wolfson's activities were under government investigation and returned after the financier was indicted.

Surtax Extension In Big Trouble, Vanik Declares

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's proposed extension of the income surtax, a key part of the administration's fiscal plans, is facing problems both in and out of Congress.

"It is in serious trouble," declares Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, a member of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee. He said Nixon's urban policy had alienated some congressmen who might have supported the surtax extension past the June 30 expiration date.

"We've got some work to do," concedes Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, the ranking Republican on the committee.

New threats to the surtax extension came Wednesday when two powerful groups declared any such bill must be coupled with sweeping reforms of the entire federal tax structure.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council said it will not support the extension unless it is combined with "immediate, substantial and equitable reform." The suggested reforms go beyond what Nixon proposed last month.

Fifty-four House members of the liberal Democratic Study Group signed a letter calling on the committee to act on tax reforms first, even if it delays the surcharge extension past the June 30 deadline.

Administration officials have a chance next week to try to stir up support for the Nixon program. They will appear before the committee to urge a surtax extension designed to produce about $10 billion to help balance the budget.

"At this point I find practically no one who is willing to support the surtax," reports Vanik, who says he conducted a survey of about 30 House members.

Byrnes wouldn't go that far, but he indicated that as the Republican's principal spokesman on tax matters in the House he will have some selling to do on the surtax issue.

"Of course it is quite essential to have that $10 billion revenue and the assumption has been that almost everybody would go along when the time came," Byrnes said in an interview.

"But we can't necessarily make that assumption."

Group Protests Honduras Visit By Rockefeller

Student Slain In Demonstration; Others Hole Up

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Anti-U.S. students held up in the University of Honduras Wednesday night after one of their number was killed during a demonstration against New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's visit.

Rockefeller, who left the United States Sunday on the first of four tours south of the border as a special envoy of President Nixon, arrived in Honduras late Tuesday. He conferred Wednesday with President Oswaldo Lopez Arellano, his first encounter on the trip with a Latin-American dictator.

While the two men were meeting in the presidential palace, about 500 students gathered in a park two blocks away and began shouting, "Rockefeller go home!" They said his purpose was to "secure the exploitation of our people by the Yankees."

Wielding clubs, police charged the students. Then shots were fired and a 19-year-old student was hit twice in the head. He was taken to a hospital, where a nurse identified him as Carlos V. Zungia and said he died from his wounds.

After the police broke up the demonstration, a number of students took refuge in the university campus. The police respected the university's autonomy and did not enter the campus, but they continued to disperse students who mingled in the park where the demonstration took place.

Apparently Rockefeller was not aware of the disturbances until after they were over. The 23 experts traveling with him were informed by newsmen returning from the demonstration.

Alleged Spies Are Executed

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—The Iraqi government executed 10 Arabs before daybreak today for spying for Israel, the United States and Iran, the official Iraqi news agency reported.

The 10 included nine Iraqis and one Saudi Arabian.

Their names indicated they were all Moslems.

There was no immediate word on how the executions were carried out or whether the bodies were exhibited in Baghdad's main square as they have been on previous occasions. A total of 38 persons have been put to death in Iraq since the beginning of the year on spying charges.

Nine of the first group were Jewish. A howl of protest went up abroad, and no Jews have been reported executed since. There has been little condemnation abroad of the subsequent executions.

Humphrey Member Of Professor Group

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A new member of the American Association of University Professors is Hubert H. Humphrey. The former vice president is now teaching at Macalester College in St. Paul and the University of Minnesota. His application for AAUP membership was sent to the organization's headquarters in Washington and accepted promptly.

TWO veteran city servants completed 30 years of service Wednesday. Charles H. Eitel, 517 N. Court St., has been employed by the sewage plant for 30 consecutive years. He is plant operator.

Ervin Leist 109 Seyfert Ave., has 30 years of service, less four years of military duty during World War II. Leist was first appointed as superintendent — chemist at the sewage plant. In 1946 he was named public utilities director.

Both were appointed under civil service by Mayor William B. Cady in 1939.

SOMEBODY thoughtfully dropped a copy of "The Circle", Circleville High School's annual, off at The Herald today. We took a half an hour from the busiest part of the day and scanned its pages. It was 30 minutes well spent.

Marion Brehmer, the annual editor, and her staff, and their adviser "Mother" Boggs have turned out a fine publication. Their theme this year is "A game of chess."

THE BIRCH tree planted in the small garden spot in front of the Pickaway County Courthouse looks as if it is about ready to topple over. Almost as though it has had one drink too many.

Apparently the soil is not deep enough to allow the root system to develop as it should, although the tree is quite healthy otherwise.

POLICE had an accident literally dumped right in their laps Tuesday evening. Cars driven by Wayne L. Atwood 25, Williamsport, and Gary Warner Betts, 22, 216 S. Washington St., collided at the intersection of Court and Franklin Sts.

Betts' car rolled over and came to a stop on the sidewalk right beside the city building. Nobody was hurt.

THERE is a fine, sturdy oak bench in the lobby of City Hall. The new piece of furniture was provided for people waiting to see any of the city officials housed on the first floor of the building.

Hanoi Hardliners Believed Still Hopeful Of Military Win

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some top U.S. officials believe a thin majority of the North Vietnamese leadership favors a battlefield decision rather than a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam war.

Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, North Vietnam's defense minister and victor over the French at Dien Bien Phu, is said to be the leader of a hardline group that rejects the idea of peace through the Paris talks.

Giap thinks the war can be won by North Vietnam on the battlefields of South Vietnam, analysts say. This leads some administration defense officials to be pessimistic about the Paris negotiations.

The analysts' opinion that hardliners are on top in Hanoi seems to clash with a statement by President Nixon during his Vietnam report to the nation last night.

"Reports from Hanoi indicate that the enemy has given up hope for a military victory in South Vietnam but is counting on a collapse of American will in the United States," Nixon said.

The President did not elaborate.

The new burst of enemy activity, together with North Vietnam's seeming stubbornness in Paris, makes remote two of the three conditions the Nixon Administration has laid down as prerequisites—either together or singly—for any U.S. troop withdrawal from Vietnam.

These two conditions, as stated recently by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, involve mutual troop withdrawal and a substantial reduction in enemy activity in South Vietnam. The North Vietnamese have insisted on a unilateral U.S. withdrawal.

This leaves the third condition—and here U.S. authorities see marked progress—specifying there must be a sufficient upgrading and modernization of the South Vietnamese forces so they can take over more of the war responsibilities.

This, in the view of top administration authorities, is the key condition that must be reached before U.S. troops can start to leave.

Inmate Found Guilty Of Rioting

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — John Q. Green, one of 58 Ohio Penitentiary inmates charged with participating in rioting in the prison last summer, was convicted of a prison rioting charge in Common Pleas Court Wednesday.

Judge Fred J. Shoemaker sentenced Green to 5-30 years in prison, to be served after he completes a 1-25 year term for armed robbery. The jury was unable to reach a verdict on two other prison rioting charges against Green, and a fourth charge was dismissed. He was the seventh inmate brought to trial on the charges.

Green was sentenced originally from Franklin County.

Thieu Expected To Agree With Major Peace Points

SAIGON (AP) — The political points put forward by President Nixon appear to mesh closely with recent statements by President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Although there was no immediate comment from Thieu or other government officials on Nixon's speech Wednesday, the parallels with known South Vietnamese positions are evident.

One diplomat with long experience in dealing with the Saigon government said: "I don't think they'll have any trouble buying it all."

On the crucial point, eventual entry of the National Liberation Front (NLF) into what would amount to a coalition government, both Washington and Saigon clearly seem to agree. Without using the words "coalition government," Nixon said:

"We believe there should be an opportunity for full participation in the political life of South Vietnam by all political elements that are prepared to do so without the use of force or intimidation."

In a speech to parliament April 7, Thieu laid down a six-point program as a "reasonable and solid basis for the restoration of peace in Vietnam."

One point was: "Those now fighting against us who renounce violence, respect the laws, and faithfully abide by the democratic processes will be welcomed as full members of the national community. As such, they will enjoy full political rights."

Another Nixon statement—"We have no intention of imposing any form of government upon the people of South Vietnam, nor will we be a party to such coercion"—was expected to reassure South Vietnamese leaders who at times have expressed fears of a sellout by the United States.

Nixon also said a political settlement is "an internal matter, which ought to be decided among the South Vietnamese themselves and not imposed by outside powers."

Naval Officer Gets Easy Leave

SAIGON (AP) — Ens. Jeffrey L. Rogers had no trouble getting four days shore leave to visit his folks in Saigon.

"The Navy was extremely cooperative," said the 24-year-old officer, who is a navigator on the hospital ship Repose. "As a matter of fact, they ordered me to take shore leave."

Jeffrey met his mother and father at Tan Son Nhut airport when Secretary of State William P. Rogers and his wife arrived Wednesday. Jeffrey has been in the war zone six months, most of the time off Vietnam, and this is his father's first visit to the Far East since he became secretary of state.

Hanoi, Washington Peace Plans Compared

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's report to the nation on Vietnam, including his own formula for reaching peace, came six days after the Viet Cong presented a 10-point plan for settlement of the war.

Here is a summary comparison of the two proposals.

Point 1 of the Viet Cong asked respect for rights of independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity as recognized by the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam. Nixon said a peace agreement would have all parties agree to observe those accords.

troops and bases from South Vietnam.

Nixon proposed simultaneous withdrawal by both sides with complete disengagement from combat by foreign forces in 12 months. He said, "We have also ruled out either a one-sided withdrawal from Vietnam, or the acceptance in Paris of terms that would amount to a disguised American defeat."

In their third point, the Viet Cong said it is the right of Vietnamese people to continue to fight if they choose for their fatherland.

In proposing the 12-month pull-out Nixon said foreign troops would then no longer engage in combat operations; saying nothing about requiring a halt. He suggested, however, the international supervisory group watching withdrawal of troops also could seek cease fires.

Point 4 of the Viet Cong said South Vietnamese people would "decide themselves the political regime of South Vietnam through free and democratic general elections..." including a coalition government.

Nixon said: "We are prepared to accept any government in South Vietnam that results from the free choice of the South Vietnamese people themselves."

The fifth point of the Viet

Cong says political forces representing all social strata and every shade of political tendency in South Vietnam would set up an interim government for the country to restore normal conditions and hold elections set forth in Point 4.

Nixon said: "We believe there should be an opportunity for full participation in the political life of South Vietnam by all political elements that are prepared to do so without the use of force or intimidation."

Point 6 on the Viet Cong list would have the country establish a policy of peace and neutrality, including by name good relations with Cambodia, Laos under the 1962 Geneva agreement on Laos, and diplomatic relations with all countries including the United States.

Nixon said: "We are willing to agree to neutrality for South Vietnam if that is what the South Vietnamese people freely choose..." All parties would agree to observe the Geneva Accords of 1954 regarding South Vietnam and Cambodia, and the Laos Accords of 1962."

The Viet Cong's seventh point was a call for reunification of North and South Vietnam, negotiated between the two zones without recognition of the 17th (Continued on Page 22)

Ohio House Turns Down Housing Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio House defeated a fair housing bill today that would have extended fair housing to one family and two family dwellings.

The vote was 49 - 36. Fifty votes are required for passage in the 99-member House.

The defeat came as a surprise to House leaders. House Speaker Charles F. Kurfess R-4 Perryssburg only last night forecast smooth sailing for the bill.

It had no opposition in committee hearings.

Temper flared during an hour - long debate ending at noon.

Much of the argument concerned House rules and procedures rather than the substance of the bill. Rep. William L. Malory D-72 Cincinnati touched off the change when he called the bill "a cheap political trick to make the people of Ohio believe we are taking a forward step on fair housing."

Malory spoke on behalf of an amendment offered by Rep. C. J. McClain D-88 Dayton which would have permitted injunction relief by a common pleas court during the time the Civil Rights Commission was investigating a complaint.

Rep. Keith McNamara R-64 Columbus, who defended the measure on the floor, said the idea of the bill was to bring Ohio in line with the federal act and recent court decisions concerning housing.

He said the bill attempted to deal with the substance and not over technical matters of enforcement or penalties.

McClain's amendment, after considerable discussion, was ruled out of order.

Hanoi, Washington Peace Plans Compared

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's report to the nation on Vietnam, including his own formula for reaching peace, came six days after the Viet Cong presented a 10-point plan for settlement of the war.

Here is a summary comparison of the two proposals.

Point 1 of the Viet Cong asked respect for rights of independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity as recognized by the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam. Nixon said a peace agreement would have all parties agree to observe those accords.

Point 2 called for unconditional withdrawal of American troops and bases from South Vietnam.

Nixon proposed simultaneous withdrawal by both sides with complete disengagement from combat by foreign forces in 12 months. He said, "We have also ruled out either a one-sided withdrawal from Vietnam, or the acceptance in Paris of terms that would amount to a disguised American defeat."

In their third point, the Viet Cong said it is the right of Vietnamese people to continue to fight if they choose for their fatherland.

In proposing the 12-month pull-out Nixon said foreign troops would then no longer engage in combat operations; saying nothing about requiring a halt. He suggested, however, the international supervisory group watching withdrawal of troops also could seek cease fires.

Point 4 of the Viet Cong said South Vietnamese people would "decide themselves the political regime of South Vietnam through free and democratic general elections..." including a coalition government.

Nixon said: "We are prepared to accept any government in South Vietnam that results from the free choice of the South Vietnamese people themselves."

The fifth point of the Viet

Cong says political forces representing all social strata and every shade of political tendency in South Vietnam would set up an interim government for the country to restore normal conditions and hold elections set forth in Point 4.

Nixon said: "We believe there should be an opportunity for full participation in the political life of South Vietnam by all political elements that are prepared to do so without the use of force or intimidation."

Point 6 on the Viet Cong list would have the country established a policy of peace and neutrality, including by name good relations with Cambodia, Laos under the 1962 Geneva agreement on Laos, and diplomatic relations with all countries including the United States.

Nixon said: "We are willing to agree to neutrality for South Vietnam if that is what the South Vietnamese people freely choose..." All parties would agree to observe the Geneva Accords of 1954 regarding South Vietnam and Cambodia, and the Laos Accords of 1962."

The Viet Cong's seventh point was a call for reunification of North and South Vietnam, negotiated between the two zones without recognition of the 17th

Legal sources say incorporation papers frequently are handled by attorneys who select the individuals to serve as incorporators.

The chairman of the board and president of GreatAmerica at the time of its incorporation was Troy V. Post. The company's fiscal 1964 report lists Gustave Levy as a director. Both men held their posts through fiscal 1968 when GreatAmerica and its subsidiary, Braniff, were acquired by the conglomerate Ling-Temco-Vought. Paul Porter's name appears as a director of Braniff in 1967 and 1968.

Last year, Porter collected $30,000 to finance Fortas' lecture series. Five men contributed to the fund. Two of them were Post and Levy.

American University officials told the Senate last year that Fortas got $15,000 of the fund and the university got the other half.

Also last year, a CAB examiner held extensive hearings on the eagerly sought Pacific airline routes. When he recommended the awards, Braniff had no share of the plum.

However, when the CAB and Johnson announced the final awards, Braniff got a route to Hawaii through Mexico City and Acapulco, increasing its air route mileage by about 200 per cent.

The chairman of the CAB when the award was made was John Crocker Jr., a Houston lawyer and a former partner in the firm of Fulbright, Crocker, Freeman, Bates and Jaworski. Leon Jaworski has acted as a personal attorney for Johnson.

Crocker first was appointed to the CAB in March 1968 to fill an unexpired term. Just a little over a month later, far from the end of the term, Johnson renominated him for a full six-year term beginning this year.

Several Republicans, led by Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, strongly objected to the renomination on the grounds that the new President, whoever he might be, ought to be able to name his own CAB chairman.

The word was passed that discussion of the matter would be delayed, at least until after the political conventions. However on Aug. 2, with most Republicans in Congress already out of Washington and in Miami Beach at the convention site, Crocker's nomination went to the Senate floor and passed.

After Nixon took office, he threw out the Braniff award on grounds it was not economically justified.

Nixon Viet Speech Seeks Peace In Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and his advisers went over details of his eight-point Vietnam offer today and prepared to send it to the Paris talks despite an initial cold shoulder from enemy negotiators there.

The President outlined the offer, including a plan for a mutual pull-out of major forces over a 12-month span, in a nationwide address Wednesday night.

In the follow-up the chief of the U.S. mission to the Paris parley, Henry Cabot Lodge, conferred with the administration leadership at a special joint meeting of the Cabinet and the National Security Council at the White House before heading back to the French capital later in the day.

The speech drew a generally favorable response from U.S. political figures, but what U.S. officials said was a not unexpected negative response initially from representatives of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front in Paris.

Neither the White House nor the State Department had any immediate comment on the reaction.

The NLF statement said the United States "still clings to its old formula of a mutual withdrawal of troops, a formula which we have repeatedly rejected."

But from Hanoi, the Communist-aligned Japanese news agency Nihon Denpa News quoted "observers" in the North Vietnamese capital as predicting Hanoi will "make some kind of favorable reaction to the American proposal after thoroughly examining it."

Lodge, who arrived here Wednesday for the Nixon speech and high level conferences, arranged to take off early this afternoon by Air Force jet to speed back to Paris.

The U.S. envoy will be presenting the Nixon proposal Friday at the weekly session of the Paris talks, officials said.

Nixon's half-hour telecast—his first full-scale White House speech on Vietnam—won applause from his supporters and subdued initial comment from war critics as the President also:

—Hinted anew at forthcoming U.S. troop withdrawals regardless of what happens at Paris. "The time is approaching when South Vietnamese forces will be able to take over some of the fighting fronts now being manned by Americans," he quoted the U.S. Commander in Saigon, Gen. Creighton Abrams, as saying.

—Vowed to keep his campaign pledge "to end this war in a way that would increase our chances to win true and lasting peace" and declared that "If I fail to do so, I expect the American people to hold me accountable for that failure."

—Promised U.S. firmness in the basic goal of self-determination for South Vietnam—"we have also ruled out either a one-sided withdrawal from Vietnam, or the acceptance in Paris of terms that would amount to a disguised American defeat," he said.

—Delivered a veiled warning to Hanoi against military offensives, saying, "I must make clear in all candor that if the needless suffering continues, this will affect our decisions."

—Appealed to the American people "whatever our differences," to back his peace offer. "Nothing could have a greater effect in convincing the enemy that he should negotiate in good faith than to see the American people united behind a generous and reasonable peace offer," he said.

White House sources said Nixon timed his offer which had been ready for some weeks, for delivery now because this seems to be the best moment for a U.S. move to thaw the Paris deadlock. The President's eight "concrete proposals" were:

—"As soon as agreement can be reached, all non-South Vietnamese forces would begin withdrawals from South Vietnam."

—"Over a period of 12 months, by agreed-upon stages, the major portions of all U.S. Allied, and other non-South Vietnamese forces would be withdrawn. At the end of this 12 month period, the remaining U.S. Allied and other non-South Vietnamese forces would move into designated base areas and would not engage in combat operations."

—"The remaining U.S. and allied forces would move to complete their withdrawals as the remaining North Vietnamese forces were withdrawn and returned to North Vietnam."

—"An international supervisory body, acceptable to both sides, would be created for the purpose of verifying withdrawals, and for any other purposes agreed upon between the two sides.

—"This international body would begin operating in accordance with an agreed timetable, and would participate in arranging supervised ceasefires."

—"As soon as possible after the international body was functioning, elections would be held under agreed procedures and under the supervision of the international body."

—"Arrangements would be made for the release of prisoners of war on both sides at the earliest possible time."

—"All parties would agree to observe the Geneva accords of 1954 regarding Vietnam and Cambodia, and the Laos accords of 1962."

under pressure is unprecedented. There has been only one impeachment trial of a justice—Samuel Chase in the early 19th century—and he was acquitted of charges that he violated legal ethics in conducting trials while sitting on a circuit court, as Supreme Court justices did in those days.

Rep. Clark MacGregor, R-Minn., shortly before Fortas sent Nixon his letter, formally asked the House Judiciary Committee to launch an investigation of the Fortas-Wolfson incident—the first step toward possible impeachment action.

MacGregor wanted the committee to determine whether Fortas' conduct warranted impeachment proceedings.

Fortas had remained silent about the incident after issuing a statement May 4 acknowledging that while sitting on the court he had considered but finally rejected a fee from the Wolfson foundation.

He said the fee was "tendered" by the foundation in 1966 "in the hope that I would find time and could undertake, consistently with my court obligations, research functions, studies and writings connected with the work of the foundation."

"Concluding that I could not undertake the assignment, I returned the fee with my thanks," he added.

Fortas also denied interceding with any government official in behalf of Wolfson.

MacGregor's announcement Wednesday followed several days of often severe criticism from Capitol Hill after Life magazine's initial disclosure of the Fortas-Wolfson incident.

Johnson withdrew the nomination at Fortas' request after the justice became the target of a volley of complaints for accepting a $15,000 fee for a lecture series at American University and for his role as adviser to the President.

Warren, who announced his intention of resigning from the court last year, steps down at the close of the current session in June. No successor has been named.

Fortas' resignation gives Nixon the opportunity to name two new members to the court that has been roundly criticized as too liberal in its rulings.

The White House said there was no immediate reaction from the President this morning.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell had conferred with Warren on the Fortas incident and turned over to the chief justice "certain information."

The Los Angeles Times said today the Justice Department has evidence that Fortas agreed to receive $20,000 a year for life from the Wolfson foundation.

The Times story said documents in the government's possession, plus Wolfson's statement to government investigators last week, are being interpreted by department officials to mean Fortas appeared to be willing to assist Wolfson in the Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of the financier.

UE Union Seeks End Of Injunction

A request to vacate the restraining order against them was filed by the United Electrical Radio Machine Workers in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court Wednesday.

The Union, in a continuing fight with the Glass Bottle Blowers Assn. at Lincoln Molded Plastics, is seeking to have an injunction preventing them from using certain records dismissed.

The UE allegedly possesses money and records of a local of the Bottle Blowers Assn. that had its officers dismissed by the parent union.

Milan Plavsky, UE organizer, stated that his union was not dismissed from the CIO for alleged Communist infiltration, but quit over a controversy concerning support of politicians.

The motion to vacate the restraining order will be heard in Common Pleas Court May 14.

The National Labor Relations Bureau will hold a hearing at the courthouse May 23, set up an election to see what union will represent the people at Lincoln Plastics.

Soviet Spy Gets Away

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TOKYO (AP) — Police wanted to question a Soviet trade official about reports that he ferreted out Japanese industrial secrets, but he checked out of his hotel early and flew to Moscow today. Vyacheslav Alexeyevich Sedov, vice president of the All-Soviet Machinery and Technology Import Corp., arrived April 22 to discuss trade with a Japanese firm.

On May 13, police arrested an Indonesian on charges of selling Japanese industrial secrets to the Soviets. He told police he passed the information to Sedov and an official at the Soviet Embassy.

Police asked Sedov to appear for questioning but he checked out of his hotel Wednesday night and spent the night at the Soviet trade representative's office before leaving for Moscow. Police said he had been scheduled to leave May 22.

A Soviet Embassy spokesman disclaimed any knowledge of the charges or of Sedov's movements.

White House sources said Nixon timed his offer which had been ready for some weeks, for delivery now because this seems to be the best moment for a U.S. move to thaw the Paris deadlock. The President's eight "concrete proposals" were:
—"As soon as agreement can be reached, all non-South Vietnamese forces would begin withdrawals from South Vietnam."
—"Over a period of 12 months, by agreed-upon stages, the major portions of all U.S. Allied, and other non-South Vietnamese forces would be withdrawn. At the end of this 12 month period, the remaining U.S. Allied and other non-South Vietnamese forces would move into designated base areas and would not engage in combat operations."
—"The remaining U.S. and allied forces would move to complete their withdrawals as the remaining North Vietnamese forces were withdrawn and returned to North Vietnam."
—"An international supervisory

Trial Starts In Bainbridge Murder Case

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Opening statements by the prosecution and defense were scheduled today before a jury of 9 men and 3 women hearing the first-degree murder case of Curtis Davis, 22, of Bainbridge.
The jury was seated Wednesday and soon afterward made a trip to the Davis home at Bainbridge to view the scene where authorities charged Davis shot his wife, Ann, 22, and an uncle, Arthur Henderson, 57, of Ft. Thomas, Ky., Oct. 25, 1968.
Davis is being tried on two counts of first-degree murder and a charge of shooting with intent to wound a friend, Robert Kinnaman, who was at the Davis home at the time.
Davis pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

under pressure is unprecedented. There has been only one impeachment trial of a justice—Samuel Chase in the early 19th century—and he was acquitted of charges that he violated legal ethics in conducting trials while sitting on a circuit court, as Supreme Court justices did in those days.
Rep. Clark MacGregor, R-Minn., shortly before Fortas sent Nixon his letter, formally asked the House Judiciary Committee to launch an investigation of the Fortas-Wolfson incident—the first step toward possible impeachment action.
MacGregor wanted the committee to determine whether Fortas' conduct warranted impeachment proceedings.
Fortas had remained silent about the incident after issuing a statement May 4 acknowledging that while sitting on the court he had considered but finally rejected a fee from the Wolfson foundation.
He said the fee was "tendered" by the foundation in 1966 "in the hope that I would find time and could undertake, consistently with my court obligations, research functions, studies and writings connected with the work of the foundation."
"Concluding that I could not undertake the assignment, I returned the fee with my thanks," he added.
Fortas also denied interceding with any government official in behalf of Wolfson.
MacGregor's announcement Wednesday followed several days of often severe criticism from Capitol Hill after Life magazine's initial disclosure of the Fortas-Wolfson incident.
Johnson withdrew the nomination at Fortas' request after the justice became the target of a volley of complaints for accepting a $15,000 fee for a lecture series at American University and for his role as adviser to the President.
Warren, who announced his intention of resigning from the court last year, steps down at the close of the current session in June. No successor has been named.

Fortas' resignation gives Nixon on the opportunity to name two new members to the court that has been roundly criticized as too liberal in its rulings.
The White House said there was no immediate reaction from the President this morning.
Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell had conferred with Warren on the Fortas incident and turned over to the chief justice "certain information."
The Los Angeles Times said today the Justice Department has evidence that Fortas agreed to receive $20,000 a year for life from the Wolfson foundation.
The Times story said documents in the government's possession, plus Wolfson's statement to government investigators last week, are being interpreted by department officials to mean Fortas appeared to be willing to assist Wolfson in the Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of the financier.

Hog Wild Inflation

Another inflationary month or two like March may convince American economists it is time to stop talking about moderate approaches to ending the inflationary spiral and put on some meaningful brakes to stop the further erosion of the dollar.

Not only was the March cost of living increase the largest for any month in the last 18 years, but it was at an annual rate of 9.6 percent, almost double last year's rate. This certainly indicates that steps taken to curtail inflation have not succeeded.

Economists have been predicting for months that a turn in the inflationary curve is just around the corner, but that corner seems to be getting farther away. Nor is immediate relief likely to come from discontinuation of the 7 percent investment credit proposed by President Nixon.

If April indicators show a continuation of the March trend, there will be no doubt that only a tight fiscal policy — particularly heavy cuts in federal spending — can sponge up some of the excess dollars feeding the fires of inflation.

According To Boyle

By WATSON SIMS (For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — The magic of the jetliner may have brought any country of the world within an easy day's journey, but it can push the Land of Nod clear out of sight.

On a quick trip around the world, I found only the Indians claimed ability to keep their sleeping clocks in order as time zones change. But their solutions did not work for me.

I left New York at noon and in six hours arrived in what London clocks said was midnight. Suddenly it was necessary to rise at what my watch said was 1 a.m. and remain awake until 5 p.m.

Just when I was beginning to get into step with London, another nine hours by jet took me to New Delhi. All progress made in London was lost. It was impossible to sleep at what my system said was noon or rise cheerfully at what seemed midnight.

An Indian with whom I had come to discuss business suggested the trouble was that I was asking too much in our negotiations.

"I can SUMMON sleep whenever I wish," the man said, making it sound as if summon was spelled in capital letters.

"I can sleep in a car, in an airplane or even standing up. Anyone who has a clear conscience can SUMMON sleep."

I summoned sleep that evening with a clear conscience but it did not come until I met the same man for more negotiations. I then felt drowsy but still out of step.

More advice came from a reporter who also has a reputation as a Hindu philosopher.

"It is all a matter of conditioning the mind," he said.

The reporter flopped on a couch and commanded, "Right leg, go to sleep!"

body seemed totally relaxed and he apparently was asleep.

I tried this system after dinner, but it worked no better than the summons. My right leg did not sleep until 4 a.m.

On a flight which in eight hours moved from 2:30 p.m. in Tokyo to 6:30 a.m. in San Francisco, I asked the airline stewardess how she lived with the problem.

"That's what I'd like to know," she said with a yawn. "I have been on this run for months and I can never get to sleep at the right time."

On the flight from San Francisco to New York, I remembered advice received years earlier from the late Prime Minister Nehru of India. His formula was simple: six hours of sleep is necessary, seven hours a luxury, eight hours a vice.

Out of the jetliner and back in my own bed, I found the problem solved itself. Without summons, I more than fulfilled Nehru's prescription for vice.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — When a young member of a great automobile line is cut down after early promise you might logically believe that the grief in Detroit marketing circles would be profound.

This may not be the case with General Motors' Corvair. GM undoubtedly would have preferred that misfortune not come to its little rear-engine car. But, clearly, it is not a tremendous loss.

The reason is found in the background of the Corvair, in its birth, life and death, and the significance of these events in a market where the consumer is becoming more demanding and critical.

At the present time the automobile industry is being harassed from many directions by charges that it is monopolistic, that it controls its market, that it is unresponsive to the consumer.

A deep fear exists among automotive men that this criticism could be a taste of bitter things to come, of big government encircling the industry with restrictive regulations that would fall just short of control.

So disturbed is GM by this trend that late last year it issued a 100-page document giving its view on competition in the industry. Since then it has publicized its arguments widely in print, speeches and testimony.

Into this background comes what will be interpreted by some as a marketing misfortune: the demise of the Corvair. But a little reflection shows that instead here could be exhibit No. 1 for GM's antimonopoly argument.

If GM dictates to its market, why could it not save the Corvair? Many people will reach the conclusion that its death was provoked by consumer attitudes toward it. Drop back a decade in history and you'll see that the Corvair had an awful lot going for it. Its birth was in response to a signal that couldn't be missed. The consumer wished something smaller and more economical.

The market was there. The public was jaded with the parlor wheels then being made. Evidence of this was the rising sales rate of small imported vehicles from Germany, Sweden, Britain, Italy and France.

GM entered the battle with its semimall, semisport Corvair and achieved much success. In 1962 sales reached 304,000 greater than those of any foreign car. But then the public, alarmed by safety defects, deserted it.

One wonders, if GM's heart was in the fight. There are lingering doubts about whether Detroit really wanted to battle hard for the low-profit small car market. At any rate it missed it.

Americans continued to buy foreign cars and now, with Japan becoming a vigorous competitor, the annual sale of imports exceeds one million. That's a huge market for the world's most powerful auto companies to miss.

It would take a government study to reach any conclusion that the big American companies didn't wish to compete and that by inaction they turned over this market to others. Meantime, there is a lot of propaganda value in the demise of the Corvair, for it indicates that, yes, there is competition in the automotive industry, and that the consumer does have some say.

There is no denying the argument of the auto companies that they must react to rising consumer expectations. What once was accepted from manufacturers no longer is tolerated. Imagine the safety hazards of the hand crank.

To be able to show that they failed the consumer and that the consumer rejected the product, meaning the Corvair, is hardly a disaster for an industry trying to convince Congress that bigness is not badness.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

THERE'S A STUDENT at a very exclusive and expensive private prep school in the Murray Hill sector of New York City who's obviously very angry at one of his teachers.

Outside the door of the teacher's classroom he pinned a sign the other morning that reads, "Dr. Jekyll is not himself today."

The most soul-satisfying story of the week involves a cheerful truck driver who pulled up at a roadside tavern in the middle of the night for a spot of refreshment. Half-way through his dinner, three wild-looking motorcycleists roared up — bearded, leather-jacketed, filthy, with swastikas adorning their chests and helmets.

For no reason at all they selected the truck driver as a target. One poured pepper over his head, another stole his apple pie, the third deliberately upset his cup of coffee. The trucker never said one word — just arose, paid his check, and exited.

"That palooka sure ain't much of a fighter," sneered one of the invaders. The man behind the counter, peering out into the night, added, "He ain't much of a driver either. He just ran his truck right over three motorcycleists!"

Ten-year-old Juan was asked in school in Miami to write a piece about Communist Cuba. He began his essay with, "I hate Fidel Castro for two reasons: 1. He threw my family out of Havana and 2. He invented Castro oil."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Out first-born child has a condition we have never heard of, Hirschsprung's disease.

Even though we had been assured that our child will outgrow it, there are a number of questions that confuse us. Is there a possibility that our other children will be born with it, since we would like to have a large family? Can the condition be prevented?

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. R., Massachusetts
Dear Mr. Mrs. R.: I am constantly aware that patients seem to be more frightened by a disease that bears the name of its discoverer than they deserve to be. Many readers write to me with an expressed anxiety about Osler's, Meniere's, and a host of other eponym diseases. Perhaps their fear is greater because the name itself is not explicit enough.

Hirschsprung's disease is named after a famous Danish doctor who was born in 1830. He described this condition and the symptoms associated with it when first he found this in newborn children. It is a relatively rare disorder and occurs in so few cases of normal development that it certainly would not come to a layman's attention.

The condition is basically a marked enlargement of the colon or large intestine. It is recognized early and when treated intensively with drugs and diet, it does not interfere markedly with the nourishment and growth of the child. Most cases improve as the child grows older. Only in extremely severe cases is there a need for surgery. In those the results are very gratifying and permit the child to grow to adulthood without any intestinal problems.

The rarity with which this disorder occurs makes it unlikely that it will happen again in subsequently-born children. Since the exact cause is unknown there is no prevention other than to have the pregnancy followed from the very beginning. That which is known about this strange condition is that the nerves normally found in the wall of the large intestine are missing and, therefore, the muscles in the large intestine cannot properly propel food and waste products. The astute doctor who made this diagnosis can give you added assurance that it will probably never occur again.

I have a strange cyst of the ovary known as a luteum cyst. Can it lead to cancer?

Mrs. D. W., Oregon
Dear Mrs. W.: Let me immediately assure you that the universal fear of cancer should not enter into every medical problem that arises. Cancer is not the inevitable aftermath of every disease of the body. The fear of cancer seems to dominate the lives of many people and can, if unchecked, be more destructive than the disease they may have.

When a woman produces an egg in the ovary, a small sac or follicle is present. This sac disappears in most instances. Occasionally it becomes enlarged and forms a corpus luteum cyst of varying size. Only when the cyst becomes markedly enlarged or becomes complicated, is surgery necessary. The chance that a cyst will become malignant is highly improbable. These cysts, when followed regularly by the doctor for any changes in size, are usually safely controlled.

You're Telling Me

Lindsay Fights For Life

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Mayor John Lindsay of New York City opposes just about every vestige of the Nixon foreign policy as it affects Vietnam, the student attitudes toward the military, and the anti-ballistic missile. Yet Republican Senator Jacob Javits, who has never before taken part in a Republican city primary campaign, has rushed to avow his support of Lindsay in the June primary on the ground that it is now a matter of life or death for "the ideas to which I've given my whole public life." The other New York State Republican Senator, Charles Goodell, has followed the Javits lead, saying that a Lindsay defeat will be a serious setback to "the kind of Republicanism I believe in."

The Javits-Goodell defensive reaction is a measure of the importance that liberal Republicanism, which has been selling at a discount nationally, attaches to saving John Lindsay from coming to the end of his political career. If Lindsay goes, it will be a terrible black eye for the Republican liberals. Conversely, Republican conservatives and even the Nixon "middle" constituency that doesn't follow Javits on foreign policy matters know that this is the time for a kill. Hence the bitterness of the New York City Republican mayoral primary campaign.

It has to be seen from close up to be believed. The Lindsay forces, knowing that the great bulk of the New York City Republicans are on the conservative side, have put together a kitty which has been estimated at $200,000 to locate every possible registered Lindsay Republican in order to get him out to the primary polling booth in June. Past voting preferences, ethnic identification, general philosophical attitudes, machine loyalties — all of these are being fed to the computers. The forces of State Senator John Marchi, the Staten Island conservative Republican who hopes to best Lindsay in the primary, have not the money to match the Lindsay effort.

What Marchi does have in his favor is the Republican primary, and what Mario Procaccino, the Democratic City Comptroller, has going for him in his hopes for beating former Mayor Bob Wagner, Bronx Congressman James Scheuer, and Bronx Borough President Herman Badillo (all of them Reform Democrats of one shade or another), in the Democratic primary, is the incontestable fact that "law and order" is the overriding issue in New York City as a whole. The whole drift in the City, as well as in the State, can be summed up as "anything to stop the violence." Lindsay himself, in finally making the police available to protect the high schools and the college campuses, has belatedly discovered that this is the issue. So has Governor Nelson Rockefeller, who, despite the liberals who want to see the neighborhood school give way everywhere to forced integration by busing, has just signed an anti-busing bill that was co-sponsored by John Marchi in the State Senate and by Joseph Kunzeman, the Marchi candidate for New York City Comptroller, in the State Assembly.

As the June primaries approach, the city is seething with speculation about the possible party line-ups for November. But, regardless of how the Republican primary comes out,

Tornado Warning System Bill Pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr., R-Ohio, introduced a House bill Wednesday to establish a national tornado detection and warning system. The measure would authorize spending $10 million for research into tornadoes and other severe local storms.

both Lindsay and Marchi will be on the ballot, the first by virtue of his Liberal Party endorsement and the second because the Conservative Party wants him. In certain quarters it is now believed that Mario Procaccino has the edge over Bob Wagner for the Democratic nomination, but nobody is saying Wagner is through. He could easily go "down the middle" to get the Democratic accolade as a candidate who has controlled violence in the past by heading it off.

The main point, however, is that Lindsay can be beaten, whether it is in June or November, because of his failure to preserve law and order. In his favor it can be foolish.

Dear Editor:
It was my pleasure to attend the District Solo and Ensemble Auditions Saturday at Walnut Ridge High School with 71 members of our Junior High School Band.
It was truly a wonderful experience to listen to so many fine young people from our Junior High compete with students from other schools in our district. These boys and girls had worked long and hard preparing solo and ensemble pieces. It made me proud to be from Circleville to see this group perform.
I'm sure none of us could guess the amount of time spent and work done by their director, Clifford Kerns, in order to present so many students so well.
It occurred to me as I watched him "herd his flock" that the kind words, encouraging pats on the shoulder and obvious personal involvement make the difference between just a paid professional and a truly dedicated educator.
We are indeed fortunate to have such a fine teacher in our school system.

Hog Wild Inflation

Another inflationary month or two like March may convince American economists it is time to stop talking about moderate approaches to ending the inflationary spiral and put on some meaningful brakes to stop the further erosion of the dollar.

Not only was the March cost of living increase the largest for any month in the last 18 years, but it was at an annual rate of 9.6 percent, almost double last year's rate. This certainly indicates that steps taken to curtail inflation have not succeeded.

Economists have been predicting for months that a turn in the inflationary curve is just around the corner, but that corner seems to be getting farther away. Nor is immediate relief likely to come from discontinuation of the 7 percent investment credit proposed by President Nixon.

If April indicators show a continuation of the March trend, there will be no doubt that only a tight fiscal policy — particularly heavy cuts in federal spending — can sponge up some of the excess dollars feeding the fires of inflation.

According To Boyle

By WATSON SIMS (For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — The magic of the jetliner may have brought any country of the world within an easy day's journey, but it can push the Land of Nod clear out of sight.

On a quick trip around the world, I found only the Indians claimed ability to keep their sleeping clocks in order as time zones change. But their solutions did not work for me.

I left New York at noon and in six hours arrived in what London clocks said was midnight. Suddenly it was necessary to rise at what my watch said was 1 a.m. and remain awake until 5 p.m.

Just when I was beginning to get into step with London, another nine hours by jet took me to New Delhi. All progress made in London was lost. It was impossible to sleep at what my system said was noon or rise cheerfully at what seemed midnight.

An Indian with whom I had come to discuss business suggested the trouble was that I was asking too much in our negotiations.

"I can SUMMON sleep whenever I wish," the man said, making it sound as if summon was spelled in capital letters.

"I can sleep in a car, in an airplane or even standing up. Anyone who has a clear conscience can SUMMON sleep."

I summoned sleep that evening with a clear conscience but it did not come until I met the same man for more negotiations. I then felt drowsy but still out of step.

More advice came from a reporter who also has a reputation as a Hindu philosopher.

"It is all a matter of conditioning the mind," he said.

body seemed totally relaxed and he apparently was asleep.

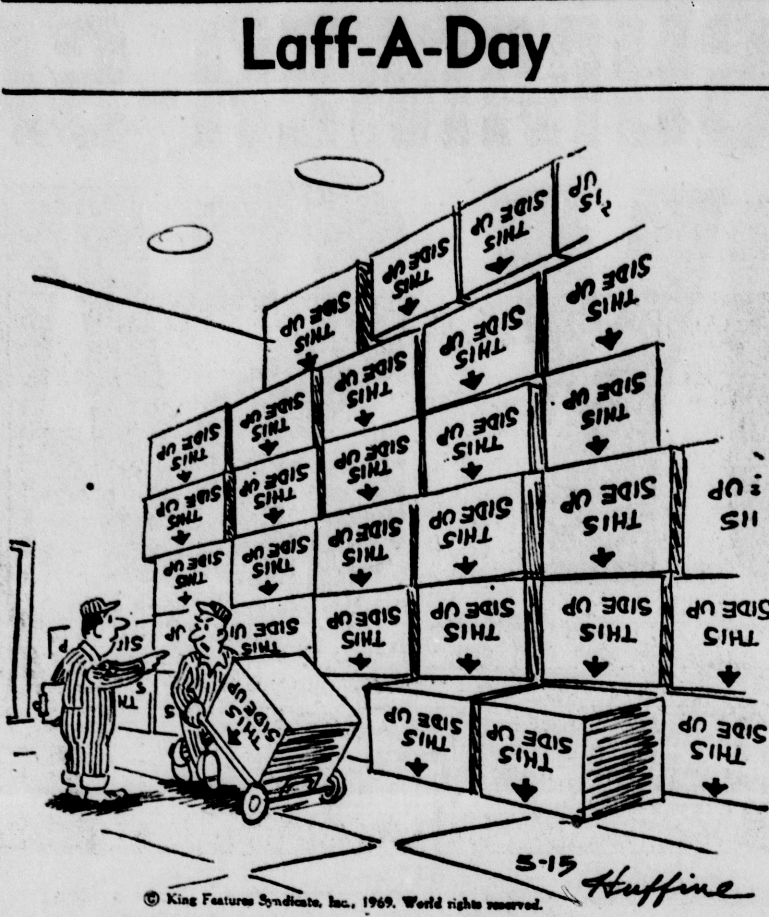

I tried this system after dinner, but it worked no better than the summons. My right leg did not sleep until 4 a.m.

On a flight which in eight hours moved from 2:30 p.m. in Tokyo to 6:30 a.m. in San Francisco, I asked the airline stewardess how she lived with the problem.

"That's what I'd like to know," she said with a yawn. "I have been on this run for months and I can never get to sleep at the right time."

On the flight from San Francisco to New York, I remembered advice received years earlier from the late Prime Minister Nehru of India. His formula was simple: six hours of sleep is necessary, seven hours a luxury, eight hours a vice.

Out of the jetliner and back in my own bed, I found the problem solved itself. Without summons, I more than fulfilled Nehru's prescription for vice.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

THERE'S A STUDENT at a very exclusive and expensive private prep school in the Murray Hill sector of New York City who's obviously very angry at one of his teachers.

Outside the door of the teacher's classroom he pinned a sign the other morning that reads, "Dr. Jekyll is not himself today."

The most soul-satisfying story of the week involves a cheerful truck driver who pulled up at a roadside tavern in the middle of the night for a spot of refreshment. Half-way through his dinner, three wild-looking motorcyclists roared up — bearded, leather-jacketed, filthy, with swastikas adorning their chests and helmets.

For no reason at all they selected the truck driver as a target. One poured pepper over his head, another stole his apple pie, the third deliberately upset his cup of coffee. The trucker never said one word — just arose, paid his check, and exited.

"That palooka sure ain't much of a fighter," sneered one of the invaders. The man behind the counter, peering out into the night, added, "He ain't much of a driver either. He just ran his truck right over three motorcyclists!"

Ten-year-old Juan was asked in school in Miami to write a piece about Communist Cuba. He began his essay with, "I hate Fidel Castro for two reasons: 1. He threw my family out of Havana and 2. He invented Castro oil."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Out first-born child has a condition we have never heard of, Hirschsprung's disease. Even though we had been assured that our child will outgrow it, there are a number of questions that confuse us. Is there a possibility that our other children will be born with it, since we would like to have a large family? Can the condition be prevented?

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. R., Massachusetts

Dear Mr. Mrs. R.: I am constantly aware that patients seem to be more frightened by a disease that bears the name of its discoverer than they deserve to be. Many readers write to me with an expressed anxiety about Osler's, Meniere's, and a host of other eponym diseases. Perhaps their fear is greater because the name itself is not explicit enough.

Hirschsprung's disease is named after a famous Danish doctor who was born in 1830. He described this condition and the symptoms associated with it when first he found this in newborn children. It is a relatively rare disorder and occurs in so few cases of normal development that it certainly would not come to a layman's attention.

The condition is basically a marked enlargement of the colon or large intestine. It is recognized early and when treated intensively with drugs and diet, it does not interfere markedly with the nourishment and growth of the child. Most cases improve as the child grows older. Only in extremely severe cases is there a need for surgery. In those the results are very gratifying and permit the child to grow to adulthood without any intestinal problems.

The rarity with which this disorder occurs makes it unlikely that it will happen again in subsequently-born children. Since the exact cause is unknown there is no prevention other than to have the pregnancy followed from the very beginning. That which is known about this strange condition is that the nerves normally found in the wall of the large intestine are missing and, therefore, the muscles in the large intestine cannot properly propel food and waste products. The astute doctor who made this diagnosis can give you added assurance that it will probably never occur again.

ovary known as a luteum cyst. Can it lead to cancer?

Mrs. D. W., Oregon

Dear Mrs. W.: Let me immediately assure you that the universal fear of cancer should not enter into every medical problem that arises. Cancer is not the inevitable aftermath of every disease of the body. The fear of cancer seems to dominate the lives of many people and can, if unchecked, be more destructive than the disease they may have.

When a woman produces an egg in the ovary, a small sac or follicle is present. This sac disappears in most instances. Occasionally it becomes enlarged and forms a corpus luteum cyst of varying size. Only when the cyst becomes markedly enlarged or becomes complicated, is surgery necessary. The chance that a cyst will become malignant is highly improbable. These cysts, when followed regularly by the doctor for any changes in size, are usually safely controlled.

Lindsay Fights For Life

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Mayor John Lindsay of New York City opposes just about every vestige of the Nixon foreign policy as it affects Vietnam, the student attitudes toward the military, and the anti-ballistic missile. Yet Republican Senator Jacob Javits, who has never before taken part in a Republican city primary campaign, has rushed to avow his support of Lindsay in the June primary on the ground that it is now a matter of life or death for "the ideas to which I've given my whole public life." The other New York State Republican Senator, Charles Goodell, has followed the Javits lead, saying that a Lindsay defeat will be a serious setback to "the kind of Republicanism I believe in."

The Javits-Goodell defensive reaction is a measure of the importance that liberal Republicanism, which has been selling at a discount nationally, attaches to saving John Lindsay from coming to the end of his political career. If Lindsay goes, it will be a terrible black eye for the Republican liberals. Conversely, Republican conservatives and even the Nixon "middle" constituency that doesn't follow Javits on foreign policy matters know that this is the time for a kill. Hence the bitterness of the New York City Republican mayoral primary campaign.

It has to be seen from close up to be believed. The Lindsay forces, knowing that the great bulk of the New York City Republicans are on the conservative side, have put together a kitty which has been estimated at $500,000 to locate every possible registered Lindsay Republican in order to get him out to the primary polling booth in June. Past voting preferences, ethnic identification, general philosophical attitudes, machine loyalties — all of these are being fed to the computers. The forces of State Senator John Marchi, the Staten Island conservative Republican who hopes to best Lindsay in the primary, have not the money to match the Lindsay effort.

What Marchi does have in his favor is the Republican primary, and what Mario Procaccino, the Democratic City Comptroller, has going for him in his hopes for beating former Mayor Bob Wagner, Bronx Congressman James Scheuer, and Bronx Borough President Herman Badillo (all of them Reform Democrats of one shade or another), is the Democratic primary, in the incontestable fact that "law and order" is the overriding issue in New York City as a whole. The whole drift in the City, as well as in the State, can be summed up as "anything to stop the violence." Lindsay himself, in finally making the police available to protect the high schools and the college campuses, has belatedly discovered that this is the issue. So has Governor Nelson Rockefeller, who, despite the liberals who want to see the neighborhood school give way everywhere to forced integration by busing, has just signed an anti-busing bill that was co-sponsored by John Marchi in the State Senate and by Joseph Kunzeman, the Marchi candidate for New York City Comptroller, in the State Assembly.

As the June primaries approach, the city is seething with speculation about the possible party line-ups for November. But, regardless of how the Republican primary comes out,

Tornado Warning

System Bill Pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr., R-Ohio, introduced a House bill Wednesday to establish a national tornado detection and warning system.

The measure would authorize spending $10 million for research into tornadoes and other severe local storms.

both Lindsay and Marchi will be on the ballot, the first by virtue of his Liberal Party endorsement and the second because the Conservative Party wants him. In certain quarters it is now believed that Mario Procaccino has the edge over Bob Wagner for the Democratic nomination, but nobody is saying Wagner is through. He could easily go "down the middle" to get the Democratic accolade as a candidate who has controlled violence in the past by heading it off.

The main point, however, is that Lindsay can be beaten, whether it is in June or November, because of his good failure to preserve law and order. In his favor it can be said that neither Harlem nor the Bedford-Stuyvesant slum in Brooklyn has had a really "hot summer." But the confrontations on the various city college campuses, in the Ocean Hill-Brownsville public school district, and in the high schools generally, have belied the theory that Lindsay has any special magic in forestalling violence before it comes, or in dealing with it when it happens. No wonder, then, that Senators Javits and Goodell are badly frightened that the type of Republicanism which has kept them in office may be fighting for its life. One really good riot in New York could make any liberal prophet look foolish.

Dear Editor:

It was my pleasure to attend the District Solo and Ensemble Auditions Saturday at Walnut Ridge High School with 71 members of our Junior High School Band.

It was truly a wonderful experience to listen to so many fine young people from our Junior High compete with students from other schools in our district. These boys and girls had worked long and hard preparing solo and ensemble pieces. It made me proud to be from Circleville to see this group perform.

I'm sure none of us could guess the amount of time spent and work done by their director, Clifford Kerns, in order to present so many students so well.

It occurred to me as I watched him "herd his flock" that the kind words, encouraging pats on the shoulder and obvious personal involvement make the difference between a truly dedicated educator.

We are indeed fortunate to have such a fine teacher in our school system.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — When a young member of a great automobile line is cut down after early promise you might logically believe that the grief in Detroit marketing circles would be profound.

This may not be the case with General Motors' Corvair. GM undoubtedly would have preferred that misfortune not come to its little rear-engine car. But, clearly, it is not a tremendous loss.

The reason is found in the background of the Corvair, in its birth, life and death, and the significance of these events in a market where the consumer is becoming more demanding and critical.

At the present time the automobile industry is being harassed from many directions by charges that it is monopolistic, that it controls its market, that it is unresponsive to the consumer.

A deep fear exists among automotive men that this criticism could be a taste of bitter things to come, of big government encircling the industry with restrictive regulations that would fall just short of control.

So disturbed is GM by this trend that late last year it issued a 100-page document giving its view on competition in the industry. Since then it has publicized its arguments widely in print, speeches and testimony.

Into this background comes what will be interpreted by some as a marketing misfortune: the demise of the Corvair. But a little reflection shows that instead here could be exhibit No. 1 for GM's antimonopoly argument.

If GM dictates to its market, why could it not save the Corvair? Many people will reach the conclusion that its death was provoked by consumer attitudes toward it.

Drop back a decade in history and you'll see that the Corvair had an awful lot going for it. Its birth was in response to a signal that couldn't be missed. The consumer wished something smaller and more economical. The market was there. The public was jaded with the parlor wheels then being made. Evidence of this was the rising sales rate of small imported vehicles from Germany, Sweden, Britain, Italy and France.

GM entered the battle with its semismall, semisport Corvair and achieved much success. In 1962 sales reached 304,000 greater than those of any foreign car. But then the public, alarmed by safety defects, deserted it.

One wonders, if GM's heart was in the fight. There are lingering doubts about whether Detroit really wanted to battle hard for the low-profit small car market. At any rate it missed it.

Americans continued to buy foreign cars and now, with Japan becoming a vigorous competitor, the annual sale of imports exceeds one million. That's a huge market for the world's most powerful auto companies to miss.

It would take a government study to reach any conclusion that the big American companies didn't wish to compete and that by inaction they turned over this market to others.

Meantime, there is a lot of propaganda value in the demise of the Corvair, for it indicates that, yes, there is competition in the automotive industry, and that the consumer does have some say.

There is no denying the argument of the auto companies that they must react to rising consumer expectations. What once was accepted from manufacturers no longer is tolerated. Imagine the safety hazards of the hand crank.

To be able to show that they failed the consumer and that the consumer rejected the product, meaning the Corvair, is hardly a disaster for an industry trying to convince Congress that bigness is not badness.

Contest 'Loser' A Sure Winner!

DEAR ABBY: An article appeared in the local newspaper stating that girls between the ages of 16 and 24, who have never been married, were eligible to participate in a contest!

I applied, was accepted, and after several rehearsals was turned away because I had a year-old son.

I am working my way thru college. I am a cheer leader, college news reporter, softball pitcher, volleyball captain, band student, basketball player, am on the debate team, take ballet lessons, and have a superior rating in singing.

I work after school, keep my own apartment and take care of my child.

What more can I do to correct my mistake of having a baby out of wedlock? What must I do to gain a place in society? I do not have a bad reputation. Only a baby.

MARION W., LAWTON, OKLA.
DEAR MARION: You may not have won this "contest," but if your impressive list of activities is any index to your determination and ability, you look like a sure winner in the more important contests of life.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman who was bitter because her ex-husband was marrying a "Vietnamese prostitute" and bringing her back to the states prompts this letter.

The expression "war is hell" is an understatement at best. I wonder how many American women would choose starvation over prostitution.

In observing many foreign wives who have come home with our GI's the majority of them have become excellent wives and mothers. Their greatest problem is adjusting to the bigotry so predominate in American society.

It's not important what a person has been. It's what a person IS—and is becoming that's important.

God's forgiveness is just as sure for the prostitute as it is for the man or woman who has indulged in premarital sex.

Your compassion for the "Vietnamese prostitute" was noted and appreciated by this—

KOREAN VETERAN
DEAR ABBY: Recently a woman wrote that her ex-husband was marrying and bringing back to the states a "Vietnamese prostitute." Abby, I think she was mistaken.

Before an American service man can marry a "native girl" overseas there is a mountain of paper work which must be completed. This includes a thorough investigation of the girl. She must have a health check, police check, and vice check. And unless she passes these 100 per cent, she'll not be issued a visa.

I doubt whether many American girls would survive such close scrutiny. I have been in the service for 24 years, so sign me. . . .

"OLD TIMER"
DEAR ABBY: Yesterday, in a space reserved for a paid "ad" the following item appeared in our local newspaper: "Mr. and Mrs. — wish to publicly apologize for their belated thank you to all their friends and relatives for the very fine gifts they received for their wedding of February, 1968."

Would you please give me your interpretation of this item? Thank you.

CURIOUS IN N.Y.

DEAR CURIOUS: It is plainly a public "thank you" for unacknowledged wedding gifts. Nearly a year and a half late! It could have been placed there by the newlyweds themselves, or even by embarrassed parents. While it is certainly an unconventional thanks, it beats no thanks at all.

Bilik Back As Leader Of Union

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —Al Bilik was reinstated Wednesday as executive director of Council 21, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

He was suspended May 3 when the council was put under a trusteeship. International officers said at the time they acted because of dissension that led to walkouts in violation of the union constitution.

Robert Brindza of Lakewood, an international representative who was named trustee, said a hearing on the trusteeship will be held Saturday by three members of the international judicial panel.

Jerry Wurth, national president of the union, wrote Brindza that an audit "shows there is no mishandling of funds by any staff representative or the executive director of Council 21."

"It is noteworthy," Wurth added, "that none of the intimations and allegations in this regard have been substantiated."

Bilik, present at a news conference called by Brindza, said there is some dissension among the state staff but "it is an issue that I think we can resolve."

He said his main desire is to continue efforts to get a substantial pay increase for state employees.

Virginia Clergyman Seeks To Broadcast From Israel

By HARRY NASH
Associated Press Writer

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — A Virginia clergyman is seeking to build a radio station in Israel to spread the gospel of Jesus Christ into the Soviet Union and the Arab nations.

The Rev. Marion G. Robertson—he prefers to be called Pat—went to Tel Aviv in March and discussed his proposal for such a station with an Israeli official in charge of issuing broadcast licenses.

This official, Robertson told an interviewer, "showed a good deal of interest because he realized such a station would help Israel economically and improve its relations with Russia and the Arabs," but said the final decision would be up to Prime Minister Golda Meir.

"I wrote to the prime minister's chief of staff in April and I am now awaiting his reply," Robertson said. "I am planning a trip to Israel in August and I will try then to see Mrs. Meir in person."

Robertson, 39, is president of the Christian Broadcasting Network, Inc., which he founded in Portsmouth in 1960, when he bought a small television station that had gone off the air. He began broadcasting religious programs in October 1961.

"Income during the first year

was $7,000 and has virtually doubled every year since," he said.

Robertson, who stands two inches over six feet, is an ordained Baptist minister. He is the son of Virginia's former U.S. Sen. A. Willis Robertson.

He was graduated from Washington and Lee University, served in Korea as a Marine officer, received a law degree from Yale University, tried big business briefly, entered New York Theological Seminary and received a bachelor of sacred theology degree in 1959. The radio station he wants to build in Israel would cost about $2 million, Robertson said. "It would be one million watts on AM and a half-million watts on short wave which would reach Russia, all the Arab nations, Africa and parts of Eastern Europe. We would broadcast some programs in Russian, some in Arabic and some in English."

TORNADO DAMAGE—Debris is strewn over a large area after a tornado struck this home near Shepherdsville, Ky. No one was injured.

Bilik Back
Of Union

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —Al Bilik was reinstated Wednesday as executive director of Council 21, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

He was suspended May 3 when the council was put under a trusteeship. International officers said at the time they acted because of dissension that led to walkouts in violation of the union constitution.

Robert Brindza of Lakewood, an international representative who was named trustee, said a hearing on the trusteeship will be held Saturday by three members of the international judicial panel.

Jerry Wurth, national president of the union, wrote Brindza that an audit "shows there is no mishandling of funds by any staff representative or the executive director of Council 21."

"It is noteworthy," Wurth added, "that none of the intimations and allegations in this regard have been substantiated."

Bilik, present at a news conference called by Brindza, said there is some dissension among the state staff but "it is an issue that I think we can resolve."

He said his main desire is to continue efforts to get a substantial pay increase for state employees.

Virginia Clergyman Seeks To Broadcast From Israel

By HARRY NASH
Associated Press Writer

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — A Virginia clergyman is seeking to build a radio station in Israel to spread the gospel of Jesus Christ into the Soviet Union and the Arab nations.

The Rev. Marion G. Robertson—he prefers to be called Pat—went to Tel Aviv in March and discussed his proposal for such a station with an Israeli official in charge of issuing broadcast licenses.

This official, Robertson told an interviewer, "showed a good deal of interest because he realized such a station would help Israel economically and improve its relations with Russia and the Arabs," but said the final decision would be up to Prime Minister Golda Meir.

"I wrote to the prime minister's chief of staff in April and I am now awaiting his reply," Robertson said. "I am planning a trip to Israel in August and I will try then to see Mrs. Meir in person."

Robertson, 39, is president of the Christian Broadcasting Network, Inc., which he founded in Portsmouth in 1960, when he bought a small television station that had gone off the air. He began broadcasting religious programs in October 1961.

"Income during the first year

was $7,000 and has virtually doubled every year since," he said.

Robertson, who stands two inches over six feet, is an ordained Baptist minister. He is the son of Virginia's former U.S. Sen. A. Willis Robertson.

He was graduated from Washington and Lee University, served in Korea as a Marine officer, received a law degree from Yale University, tried big business briefly, entered New York Theological Seminary and received a bachelor of sacred theology degree in 1959. The radio station he wants to build in Israel would cost about $2 million, Robertson said. "It would be one million watts on AM and a half-million watts on short wave which would reach Russia, all the Arab nations, Africa and parts of Eastern Europe. We would broadcast some programs in Russian, some in Arabic and some in English."

TORNADO DAMAGE—Debris is strewn over a large area after a tornado struck this home near Shepherdsville, Ky. No one was injured.

More College Agricultural Courses Needed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — America's colleges are not producing enough graduates to meet the demands of an agricultural boom, an Ohio State University official said Wednesday.

Dean Roy M. Kottman of OSU's College of Agriculture and Home Economics said in a report that increased efficiency has boosted farm production to almost double the level of the 1950s.

"This has created a boom in agribusiness - ancillary industries which serve agriculture on both ends of the spectrum, and this has caused a shortage of qualified personnel," the report said.

Kottman said there are three or more openings today for every college graduate.

Plan Fight To Defeat The Measles

ATLANTA (AP) — Millions of American youngsters will be immunized in a program designed to free the nation of German measles—a disease that causes birth defects.

The program will be started this summer, officials of the National Communicable Disease Center (NCDC) said Wednesday.

They said 8 million to 10 million children would be vaccinated in the first phase of the program and that eventually 40 million to 50 million children would be immunized.

The program is a massive effort to build resistance to the virus in children because they are its usual carriers, NCDC officials said.

Children—most likely to come in contact with the virus—pass it along to pregnant mothers. The disease, normally mild, is dangerous to pregnant women because it can cause malformation or death of the fetus.

The NCDC says outbreaks of German measles occur every six to nine years. An estimated 20 million persons were stricken during the last outbreak in 1964.

That outbreak the NCDC said, resulted in 50,000 abnormal pregnancies, 20,000 still births, and 30,000 children born with defects.

A new outbreak is expected by the NCDC this winter.

The Women's Society of Christian Service of Community United Methodist Church met recently for its annual May Fellowship dinner in the church. Methodist men served the meal to approximately 140 members and guests at tables decorated with spring flowers.

Following dinner, Mrs. William A. Cox, president, read a poem "The Day the Leaves Came Out" expressing thoughts of spring. She then welcomed the guests and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Fish, who were invited to give the program.

Each year the society honors two women of the church with life membership pins. These women were nominated from the circles for their faithfulness to the society and the church activities outside of Women's Society. Miss Adella Huffman and Mrs. Larry Graham were chosen to receive the honor this year.

The women gave the men a standing vote of thanks for serving the dinner and Mrs. Walter Heine led the group in prayer after which all adjourned to the sanctuary for the program.

In the sanctuary, Wilbur Fish, the Joy Bell Ringer, presented a program of Scriptures and Gospel Songs. He played the music of cricket bells, cow bells, glasses and musical saw. Wandering Bear Delays Teacher FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — Mrs. Jerry Wells, an Aztec schoolteacher, called the principal at her school Wednesday morning to tell him she would be late because of the bear in her garage.

Police captured the 2-year-old black bear about noon after it was shot with a nicotine tranquilizer.

The bear was loaded onto a trailer and taken to Zuni Mountain south of Gallup where it was released.

BRUSSELS (AP) — John S. Eisenhower, the new U.S. ambassador to Belgium, has presented his credentials to King Baudoin.

Plan Fight To Defeat The Measles

ATLANTA (AP) — Millions of American youngsters will be immunized in a program designed to free the nation of German measles—a disease that causes birth defects.

The program will be started this summer, officials of the National Communicable Disease Center (NCDC) said Wednesday.

They said 8 million to 10 million children would be vaccinated in the first phase of the program and that eventually 40 million to 50 million children would be immunized.

The program is a massive effort to build resistance to the virus in children because they are its usual carriers, NCDC officials said.

Children—most likely to come in contact with the virus—pass it along to pregnant mothers. The disease, normally mild, is dangerous to pregnant women because it can cause malformation or death of the fetus.

The NCDC says outbreaks of German measles occur every six to nine years. An estimated 20 million persons were stricken during the last outbreak in 1964.

That outbreak the NCDC said, resulted in 50,000 abnormal pregnancies, 20,000 still births, and 30,000 children born with defects.

A new outbreak is expected by the NCDC this winter.

Garden Club To Participate In Spring Show

Logan Elm Garden Club met recently in the home of Mrs. Ellen Harmount, who opened the meeting with devotions.

It was announced by the president, Mrs. Lawrence McKenzie, that plans had been completed for the Spring Meeting of the Pickaway County Council of Garden Clubs. It will be June 5 in the Service Center of Good Shepherd United Methodist Church. Reservations are to be made with Mrs. McKenzie, Route 4, no later than June 3. A flower show to be held in connection with the meeting will have as its theme "Round, Round We Go." The afternoon session will feature a demonstrator and plant sale. All clubs in the council are urged to bring plants for this sale.

Members were reminded of "Gardener's Day Out" on May 20 planned by the Ohio Assn. of Garden Clubs. This event will take place at the Imperial House, north, at 900 Morse Road, Columbus, beginning at 9 a.m.

A talk on "Roses" by Harold Allen of Chillicothe will be a feature of the June meeting to be held in the home of Mrs. Neil Morris. Each member was asked to bring a guest.

During the program hour Mrs. William Deffenbaugh demonstrated how to make corn husk roses. She also explained how to make other flowers from corn husks. She had a variety on display.

Refreshments were served by the hostess at the close of the meeting to the nine members and one guest present.

Shower Fetes Miss Walker

A miscellaneous shower honoring bride-to-be, Jeannie Walker, was held Thursday in the home of Mrs. Howard Pryor, 417 Edward Road. Miss Pauline E. Roses was co-hostess for the event.

Guests were Jeannie Meredith, Martha Weiler, Jane Hoover, Mary Kay Wolfe, Anna Dresbach, Eleanor Skaggs, Wanda Norman, Wilma Hughes, Anna Dresbach and Mary Kay Wolfe, co-workers of the honored guest at the Pickaway County Welfare Department.

Games were conducted and prizes were won by Martha Weiler, Jane Hoover, Martha Seibel, Wilma Hughes, Anna Dresbach and Mary Kay Wolfe. Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

More College Agricultural Courses Needed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — America's colleges are not producing enough graduates to meet the demands of an agricultural boom, an Ohio State University official said Wednesday.

Dean Roy M. Kottman of OSU's College of Agriculture and Home Economics said in a report that increased efficiency has boosted farm production to almost double the level of the 1950s.

"This has created a boom in agribusiness — ancillary industries which serve agriculture on both ends of the spectrum, and this has caused a shortage of qualified personnel," the report said.

Kottman said there are three or more openings today for every college graduate.

Poll Shows School Plan Unpopular

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Information Committee has said its poll of civil leaders showed opposition to most features of the Rhodes Administration education package now.

Fred J. Milligan Sr., Columbus attorney and president of the committee, announced results of a poll of 5,000 civic leaders across the state on 13 basic questions.

He said the poll showed that only three features of the Rhodes plan were acceptable to the 40 per cent who responded.

Milligan said 60 per cent agreed there should be some reorganization of the public school system, but 72 per cent opposed greater state control, 58 per cent opposed regional service centers and 56 per cent opposed county councils of education.

He said the poll also showed: 53 per cent agreed the Board of Regents should have greater authority over state university, but 71 per cent opposed state tuition grants to students at private colleges; 92 per cent agreed vocational and technical education should be expanded, but 81 per cent want it within the existing system; 54 per cent opposed additional taxes at this time to finance expanded edu-

Flap Over Army Underwear Stirred Up In Congress

By G. C. THELEN Jr.
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army's $1.5 billion supplemental budget request has run afoul of congressmen who contend it wrongfully contains money for GI winter underwear.

The flap over underwear—and over insignia for uniforms—occurred in closed-door hearings before a House appropriations subcommittee last month. A censored transcript was released today.

Reps. Glenn R. Davis, R-Wis.,

and Glenard P. Lipscomb, R-Calif., said the request for an addition to the Army's $24.9 billion budget for fiscal 1969 is billed as money for Vietnam war costs and pay hikes.

Only these two items are exempt from the spending ceiling imposed by Congress for the current fiscal year, they said.

Rep. George W. Andrews, D-Ala., however, spied a $1.5 million increase for winter underwear and a $3.3 million increase for insignia, both applicable to servicemen outside Vietnam as well as those in the combat zone.

Davis charged the Army was coming in through a budgetary back door to make up the original cut under the spending ceiling.

"This does raise a question as to whether or not we are not providing a loophole for the revenue and expenditure control act," he said.

Added Lipscomb: "What we are taking to the American people here is an emergency supplementary request to adequately finance our efforts in Southeast Asia."

"Somehow or another the members of this committee have to explain this to the Congress and to the people that this supplemental is necessary to finance that war."

The transcript did not show that the committee discussed the need for winter underwear for soldiers fighting in Vietnam's jungles.

Find 7 Cases Of Hog Cholera Across State

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Seven cases of hog cholera were discovered in Ohio last week, State Agriculture Director John M. Stackhouse said Wednesday in urging buyers to use extreme care in purchasing feeder pigs.

He said the seven herds infected last week were due to a shipment from a dealer in Tennessee, one of five states with recent hog cholera outbreaks that have been banned from exporting to Ohio.

The other states are Florida, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

The recent hog cholera cases were the first reported in Ohio in seven months, Stackhouse said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the Vietnam war ends, the United States should be able to pull its 50,000 troops out of South Korea, Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, said Wednesday.

Young said that when the 53,000 South Korean troops now in Vietnam return home, South Korea will have adequate Military strength to defend itself from any attack from North Korea.

Blame Revenue Loss On Cuts In Manpower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressionally ordered employee cutbacks saved the Treasury Department $23 million, but it lost $540 million in revenues because the department could not do as thorough a job, treasury men have told Congress.

About $500 million in taxes was lost because the Internal Revenue Service could not do as many audits, Deputy Asst. Secretary Ernest C. Betts Jr., told the House Appropriation subcommittee in testimony released today.

Another $30 million to $40 million was lost, he estimated, because short-handed Bureau of Customs inspectors had to let more mail packages pass without examination.

The spending curb in government last year required that only three out of four job vacancies could be filled.

Hocking, Paulding Counties Only Airport Plan Holdouts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's plan to have at least one public airport in every county may fall short by two counties.

Neither Paulding nor Hocking counties have taken the state up on an offer of $100,000 toward building a local airport.

Both counties will get the word soon to take positive action or surrender their rights to the funds.

If the counties decline the offer, the Division of Aviation will see if it is legal to give the money to another local government.

The city of Fostoria is interested in using the Paulding County money.

A committee handling allotment of the money hopes to contact Paulding County authorities this week on the matter.

"We decided to give them one more chance to decide whether they want to proceed with the matter," said John Cornett, assistant chief of the Aviation Division. "If they can't do anything, then we will see if it is

The program to encourage local airport construction was launched with a $5 million state allotment in 1965. It made up to $100,000 available to counties without airports that could furnish Fifty-eight counties were eligible for a share of the initial funds.

In June, 1967, the program was extended two years and $1.2 million added to the funds. Twelve counties with airports in

Rogers Arrives In Saigon For Talks And Inspections

SAIGON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers arrived in Vietnam Wednesday for four days of talks and inspections. He said that in negotiations with the Communists for a peace settlement, "we shall not compromise on our basic objective."

Rogers said President Nixon's administration agrees completely with the government of President Nguyen Van Thieu "about the purpose of the peace we seek."

"We shall not compromise on our basic objective," he said in an airport statement. This objective, he said, is "the establishment of conditions which assure that the people of South Vietnam can determine their own future unconditionally."

The future of South Vietnam "must not be imposed, in whole or in part, by outside forces," he continued. "It must be made by a process which permits the people of South Vietnam their own free choice."

"If the other side were willing to accept this principle, then prospects for peace would be greatly improved."

Rogers noted that President Nixon would be making a major speech tonight on "the prospects for peace in Vietnam."

"The President," he said, "has directed me to explore in depth with President Thieu how we and our allies can most effectively move forward from the present position further in the direction of peace."

"The people of Vietnam have fought long and suffered much to establish the conditions for a return to peace. For this they have earned the admiration and respect of all who value national independence and the rights of self determination."

"May I express to the people of South Vietnam my personal regard and appreciation for what they have done. We, and our allies, are determined that it will not have been in vain."

poor condition were added to the eligibility list.

Seneca County, which contains most of the city of Fostoria, used its allotment for an airport near Tiffin. Hancock County, which contains another part of Fostoria, used its funds elsewhere.

Cornett said Wood County which holds the remainder of Fostoria, was never eligible because it contains an up-to-date airport.

Hocking County had a different problem with its airport. While county officials have expressed a continuing interest in an airport, Cornett said there was a problem of higher construction costs in the rolling country of the region and of raising local money needed for the work.

"We need some commitment from both counties," Cornett said, "and soon, or we will take other steps to use the funds."

Protesters Raise Funds At Marietta

MARIETTA, Ohio (AP) — Marietta College students paid $1 a plate Wednesday night for a dinner of crackers, matzo and colored ice cubes for dessert. The affair was held to raise funds to pay the legal fees of Earl Maiman, student body president, whose suspension last week triggered a round of student protests.

Meanwhile, in other phases of the protest: —About 100 students began their sixth day of a hunger strike, taking only unseasoned bread and water and vitamins. —Around-the-clock picketing of the administration continued. —The Free Speech Committee planned a rally today in front of the campus library and a candlelight procession tonight. Maiman, of Scranton, Pa., was suspended last Thursday for allegedly making "inflammatory" remarks during a roundtable discussion with college President Frank E. Duddy Jr.

French Tomb A Hazard?

PARIS (AP) — The tomb of France's unknown soldier, symbol of the 1.5 million Frenchmen killed in World War I, has been classified by a police official as a traffic hazard. "It must go," said Prefect of Police Maurice Grimaud. But the French government said it will not.

Grimaud is proposing that the tomb and its eternal flame be transferred from the base of the Arch of Triumph, to the Invalides, a monumental building on the Left Bank where Napoleon's remains are kept.

Grimaud let his plan slip at a luncheon. He said wreath-laying ceremonies at the Arch of Triumph were forever fouling traffic.

Twelve streets flow into the immense circular area, bringing in 200,000 cars a day into Paris most hair-raising, continuous traffic jam.

Henri Duvillard, minister for veterans affairs and war victims, issued a statement saying he "deeply regretted discussion of the plan" which he said the government opposed.

Wittenberg Vote On Disarming Guards Planned

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — A Student Council demand that Wittenberg University security guards be disarmed will be put to a vote by students.

University Provost Allan O. Pfister suggested the referendum with the stipulation that probable results of disarming the guards be outlined on the ballot.

He said disarming the guards probably would mean that officers on duty would not respond to any call involving a felony. Such calls would be referred to city police, meaning many matters would fall out of university jurisdiction.

The council demanded that security officers be disarmed after a guard shot a student last Saturday.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Music Hall's" series of summer programs taped in London moved off to a smooth and easy start Wednesday night and undoubtedly will be one of the bright spots in the hot weather schedule of NBC.

The team of Tony Sandler and Ralph Young is an attractive one, their singing is excellent and their taste good. They also try for some comedy touches and although these sequences were the rough spots in the hour, they should be smoothed out before many of their dozen programs are finished.

Judy Carne, the gamine of "Laugh-In," is a regular on the summer shows. She was handled as a guest star and was given one handsome and lively song-and-dance production. She also appeared in a few of the quick comedy bits.

Lena Horne and Terry Thomas contributed their special talents, too. Miss Horne had a pair of effective singing numbers and showed she could hold her own in the comedy sketches. Terry-Thomas—whose efforts were greeted with loud laughs by the British studio audience—was frequently so terribly British that it was difficult to understand him.

The production values were high, the sets colorful. Now, if they can just do something to spark the comedy sequences...

President Nixon's report to the nation on negotiations to settle the Vietnam war was a marked contrast to his recent news conferences.

The President stood behind a lectern bearing the great seal of the President of the United States. He read his carefully prepared remarks. His mood and mien were serious. His presentation was business-like.

He used neither lectern nor notes at his news conferences and appeared more relaxed.

The President's address occupied most of a half hour, causing both CBS and NBC to cancel scheduled reruns of hour-long action films. As is their custom in such situations, both networks filled the rest of the hour with discussion and analysis by their staff men.

Ohio Wins U.S. Award

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Development reported Wednesday the Rhodes' administration program to increase Ohio exports has won an "E" award from the U. S. Department of Commerce.

The department termed the award "the highest the U. S. Government confers upon businesses or business oriented service organizations."

Rocco Siciliano, the commerce department's undersecretary, sent a telegram to F. P. Neuen-schwander, director of the state development department, notifying him of the award.

Siciliano said Ohio had been chosen "in recognition of outstanding contributions to the increase of U. S. trade abroad."

Since 1965, the Ohio department has operated an international trade and development division, with Glen W. Allen as director. Five state-sponsored trade fairs and trade missions abroad have netted millions of dollars worth of sales, Neuen-schwander said.

SAINTS NOT WORTHY — St. Christopher (medal, top, worn by millions of travelers) has been dropped and St. Nicholas, better known as Santa Claus, has been demoted as the Vatican classifies 90 saints not worthy of obligatory veneration by the entire body of Catholics.

Board Chairman Defends His Pay

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Stuart T. Saunders, board chairman of the Penn Central Co., was told by a stockholder that his annual salary of nearly $300,000 in 1968 seemed excessive.

"In the 1930s," replied Saunders at the company's 122nd annual meeting, "the board chairman was paid $150,000 and he took home $126,000. Today the board chairman takes home less than one-half that amount, and he can't buy even one-half of what the board chairman could buy in the 1930s."

'My Daughter, Your Son' Expected To Be Hit Play

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — Some merry nonsense, "My Daughter, Your Son," opened Tuesday night at Broadway's Booth Theater. If audience response can be trusted, a probable hit.

The story, by authors Phoebe and Henry Ephron, concerns the tribulations of young lovers and in-laws. The Ephrons have four daughters of their own, so reality may lurk behind the gaggy.

Geared to contemporary morality, the tissue issue concerns an unwed pair, sprung from emancipated parents, who decide to get married. Her elders are denizens of the Hollywood show world, his are immersed in dentistry at Columbus, Ohio.

This provides for joking detours to pad out the complications of arranging a formal wedding, surviving those panicky preparatory tensions and attaining an urbane finale.

Mr. and Mrs. Ephron sugar the familiarity with generous mounds of slick jokes and

Ohio Marine Killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department reported Wednesday that Marine Pfc. David A. Protain of Youngstown, Ohio, has been killed in recent action in Vietnam.

enough originality to make it all delightfully engaging.

The cast helps tremendously. As the mothers, Vivian Vance, of "I love Lucy" fame, and Dody Goodman, whose voice is an impeccable squeal, are split-second perfect. Robert Alda makes a blustery dad, while Bill McCutcheon blandly makes dentistry amusing.

The young couple are performed by Gene Lindsey and Lee Lawson, and it isn't their fault that the elders get the funniest lines. As a kooky younger son, Don Scardino displays requisite bumptious cool.

verve, and the settings by Robin Wagner on a triple revolve are pictorially droll.

If you want to rest your brain and briefly escape from care, "My Daughter, Your Son" should do nicely.

PARIS (AP) — The tomb of France's unknown soldier, symbol of the 1.5 million Frenchmen killed in World War I, has been classified by a police official as a traffic hazard. "It must go," said Prefect of Police Maurice Grimaud. But the French government said it will not.

Grimaud is proposing that the tomb and its eternal flame be transferred from the base of the Arch of Triumph, to the Invalides, a monumental building on the Left Bank where Napoleon's remains are kept.

Grimaud let his plan slip at a luncheon. He said wreath-laying ceremonies at the Arch of Triumph were forever fouling traffic.

Twelve streets flow into the immense circular area, bringing in 200,000 cars a day into Paris most hair-raising, continuous traffic jam.

Henri Duvillard, minister for veterans affairs and war victims, issued a statement saying he "deeply regretted discussion of the plan" which he said the government opposed.

Wittenberg Vote On Disarming Guards Planned

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — A Student Council demand that Wittenberg University security guards be disarmed will be put to a vote by students.

University Provost Allan O. Pfister suggested the referendum with the stipulation that probable results of disarming the guards be outlined on the ballot.

He said disarming the guards probably would mean that officers on duty would not respond to any call involving a felony. Such calls would be referred to city police, meaning many matters would fall out of university jurisdiction.

The council demanded that security officers be disarmed after a guard shot a student last Saturday.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Music Hall's" series of summer programs taped in London moved off to a smooth and easy start Wednesday night and undoubtedly will be one of the bright spots in the hot weather schedule of NBC.

The team of Tony Sandler and Ralph Young is an attractive one, their singing is excellent and their taste good. They also try for some comedy touches and although these sequences were the rough spots in the hour, they should be smoothed out before many of their dozen programs are finished.

Judy Carne, the gamine of "Laugh-In," is a regular on the summer shows. She was handled as a guest star and was given one handsome and lively song-and-dance production. She also appeared in a few of the quick comedy bits.

Lena Horne and Terry Thomas contributed their special talents, too. Miss Horne had a pair of effective singing numbers and showed she could hold her own in the comedy sketches. Terry-Thomas—whose efforts were greeted with loud laughs by the British studio audience—was frequently so terribly British that it was difficult to understand him.

President Nixon's report to the nation on negotiations to settle the Vietnam war was a marked contrast to his recent news conferences.

The President stood behind a lectern bearing the great seal of the President of the United States. He read his carefully prepared remarks. His mood and mien were serious. His presentation was business-like. He used neither lectern nor notes at his news conferences and appeared more relaxed.

The President's address occupied most of a half hour, causing both CBS and NBC to cancel scheduled reruns of hour-long action films. As is their custom in such situations, both networks filled the rest of the hour with discussion and analysis by their staff men.

Ohio Wins U.S. Award

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Development reported Wednesday the Rhodes' administration program to increase Ohio exports has won an "E" award from the U. S. Department of Commerce.

The department termed the award "the highest the U. S. Government confers upon businesses or business oriented service organizations."

Rocco Siciliano, the commerce department's undersecretary, sent a telegram to F. P. Neuen-schwander, director of the state development department, notifying him of the award.

Siciliano said Ohio had been chosen "in recognition of outstanding contributions to the increase of U. S. trade abroad."

Since 1965, the Ohio department has operated an international trade and development division, with Glen W. Allen as director. Five state-sponsored trade fairs and trade missions abroad have netted millions of dollars worth of sales, Neuen-schwander said.

SAINTS NOT WORTHY — St. Christopher (medal, top, worn by millions of travelers) has been dropped and St. Nicholas, better known as Santa Claus, has been demoted as the Vatican classifies 90 saints not worthy of obligatory veneration by the entire body of Catholics.

Board Chairman Defends His Pay

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Stuart T. Saunders, board chairman of the Penn Central Co., was told by a stockholder that his annual salary of nearly $300,000 in 1968 seemed excessive.

"In the 1930s," replied Saunders at the company's 122nd annual meeting, "the board chairman was paid $150,000 and he took home $126,000. Today the board chairman takes home less than one-half that amount, and he can't buy even one-half of what the board chairman could buy in the 1930s."

'My Daughter, Your Son' Expected To Be Hit Play

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — Some merry nonsense, "My Daughter, Your Son," opened Tuesday night at Broadway's Booth Theater. If audience response can be trusted, a probable hit.

The story, by authors Phoebe and Henry Ephron, concerns the tribulations of young lovers and in-laws. The Ephrons have four daughters of their own, so reality may lurk behind the gaggery.

Geared to contemporary morality, the tissue issue concerns an unwed pair, sprung from emancipated parents, who decide to get married. Her elders are denizens of the Hollywood show world, his are immersed in dentistry at Columbus, Ohio.

This provides for joking detours to pad out the complications of arranging a formal wedding, surviving those panicky preparatory tensions and attaining an urbane finale.

Mr. and Mrs. Ephron sugar the familiarity with generous mounds of slick jokes and enough originality to make it all delightfully engaging.

The cast helps tremendously. As the mothers, Vivian Vance, of "I Love Lucy" fame, and Dody Goodman, whose voice is an impeccable squeal, are split-second perfect. Robert Alda makes a blustery dad, while Bill McCutcheon blandly makes dentistry amusing.

The young couple are performed by Gene Lindsey and Lee Lawson, and it isn't their fault that the elders get the funniest lines. As a kooky younger son, Don Scardino displays requisite bumptious cool.

Larry Arrick's direction paces proceedings with laudable

verve, and the settings by Robin Wagner on a triple revolve are pictorially droll.

If you want to rest your brain and briefly escape from care, "My Daughter, Your Son" should do nicely.

High Court Upholds Law On Insurance

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court ruled today that the Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles has the authority to suspend the driver's license of a motorist whose car is not covered by liability insurance.

The court upheld lower court rulings against William Bernoir of Toledo. He was found guilty of refusing to surrender his license and car registration, and in 1966 was fined $25 in Municipal Court and given a 30-day sentence, which was suspended on condition he comply with the law in the future.

The Supreme Court upheld a Public Utilities Commission of Ohio ruling approving the merger of Northern Ohio Telephone Co. into General Telephone & Electronics Corp.

International Telephone — Telegraph Corp. protested the merger, claiming the PUCO did not hold a public hearing. But the PUCO ruled that a public hearing was not required under the statutes covering the merger.

The Supreme Court ordered the Court of Appeals to hear an appeal involving a wrongful death suit in Athens County.

Garnet Ferree of Chaucer filed the suit in 1965 to recover for the death of her husband, Joseph H., in an auto-truck collision on Nov. 17, 1964. The defendant was Eula Boggs of Elizabethtown, Ky.

Common Pleas Court ruled in favor of Mrs. Ferree and awarded her $15,000 damages. The defendant appealed, but the appellate court affirmed the decision, holding that the defendant's appeal had not been properly filed.

Not Guilty Plea Entered In Death

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A University of Michigan student charged with the hit-skip death of Linda Shaw, 21, of Centerville, as she walked near the Ohio State University campus last Nov. 23, pleaded innocent in Municipal Court Tuesday to a charge of vehicular homicide.

Michael Tubbs, 20, of Battle Creek, Mich., waived preliminary hearing and was bound to the grand jury under $2,000 bond.

He was accused of making a U-turn in the street and careening over the curb, striking Miss Shaw. He fled to a fraternity house where he was a guest for the Michigan-Ohio State football game. Later, accompanied by fraternity brothers, he surrendered to police. Three other persons struck by Tubbs' car received minor injuries.

Pickaway County Naturalist Ready To Share Knowledge

By RUTH MONTELIUS
Herald Garden Editor

To give Floyd Bartley a title would be difficult — farmer, botanist, conservationist, ornithologist would all apply.

However, I think teacher would fit him best of all.

He is really a teacher in the true sense and meaning of the word. He is always ready to help someone learn about his beloved nature. He gets great pleasure from starting someone new on the way to being interested in his hobbies.

Many famous people have attributed to him their beginning interest in nature and plant life. Dr. Harold Robinson of the Smithsonian Institute, Washington D. C., and Dr. Gustav W. Hall, professor of Biology, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. are two who give him credit for their beginning interest.

TO MENTION all the honors that have come to this gentleman would take all day and fill many volumes. A few of the organizations to which he belongs are: Wheaton Bird Club, Southern Appalachian Botanical Club, N. Y. Botanical Garden, Smithsonian Institute, Brooks Bird Club, Society for the Preservation of Southern Ohio and Circleville Garden Club. He was recently awarded a life membership in the Ohio Academy of Science.

Bartley has had a moss named for him. He found a new genus and new species. It is named Bartleya. A few years ago he found a new species of grass, Calamagrotis inspirata.

Ohio University, Athens, boasts having one of his collections. The herbarium of Ohio University is named for him.

A passerby would scarcely believe that the shady yard in front of the modest frame house East of Thatcher on Route 56 holds such a wealth of rare and beautiful plant life.

On a recent visit with Bartley at his invitation to see the Wisteria Vine, Tree Peonies, and the Silver Bell Tree in bloom, I found that these were only the highlights.

To give you some idea of the wealth of plant life in his front yard I'll mention just a few of the things I saw. There was the rare Stellate Solomon's Seal Asiatic shrub, Lilagatus, wild larkspur, wild geranium, yellow Ladies Slipper (wild orchid), Yellowroot (goldenseal), Japanese snowball, Pipevine, Korean barberry, Ginkgo tree, Virginia bluebells, also a pink variety, Herb Robert, the Jeffersonian Diphylum, the rare Disporium, wild white geranium, meadow rue, bellwort, wild ginger, and all kinds of Trilliums (including the rare double-flowered kind). There are also azaleas and many many other shrubs, plants and trees that are rare and unusual.

TO TOP off the visit he showed me his newest interest, that of collecting fossils. He has already given two collections away. This man really keeps young in spirit by new interests and enthusiasms.

He is always ready to give of his time to teach and instruct. He not only can identify each item and knows its Latin name but knows the history and background and where it is to be found, whether it be plant or fossil. It is truly an education and pleasure to chat with Floyd Bartley any time.

REK.

Miss Martha Reid's fifth grade class at Nicholas Drive school really celebrated Arbor Day in the fine old way. They had a regular ceremony. Linda Davies read a poem. Jon Berlin read an article "What do we plant when we plant a tree?" The class sang a verse of America the Beautiful. This all accompanied the planting of a Buckeye tree on the school grounds. Timely Tips

Fill planter boxes with geraniums and other flowers.

Tigridias as well as montebetias, ismenes, and tuberose may be planted this month.

Nearly all flower seeds can be sown the next few weeks.

When seedlings grown under cover are set out, choose a quiet, cloudy day if possible.

Annuals to take the place of the tulips and daffodils may be sown now between the plants.

Sweet peas need support before the vines grow tall and fall over. Wire netting is not as good as string or netting sold for this purpose.

Include herbs such as dill, sage, basil, summer savory, thyme, borage in your garden. Thyme also makes a good groundcover for banks or terraces where it is difficult to get grass to grow.

An exception to the early planting rule is Chinese cabbage which will run to seed if started before summer.

Prune lilac after blooms fade; remove suckers that sprout from the rootstock.

Do not mow lawn area where daffodils and crocus are naturalized until the foliage browns and ripens.

Mow lawn regularly and be sure the cutting blade is sharp.

Make plantings of Gladioli and Monarda bulbs every two weeks or so to ensure a succession of cut flowers later.

Dahlia tubers may be set out about the time it is safe to plant tomatoes.

Nature Notes Of Yesteryear

By the late W. M. Reid

In the city of Circleville are found growing several rare trees of eastern Asia. These trees have peculiarities not common to our native American trees.

The Maidenhair or Ginkgo tree is grown about the Chinese temples and is considered sacred. This tree has existed unchanged for many million years and is the sole survivor of all similar species. In the different geological ages through which the earth has passed, fossilized remains of this tree have been found, making it the oldest tree in existence.

The leaves of the Ginkgo are most peculiar in their arrangement on the branch. The leaves of our native trees are in opposites or in spirals, while on this tree, they are arranged in clusters of three to five on spurs like the blossoms of apples or pears. While the leaves of our trees aren't veined, the Ginkgo has fan-shaped parallel veins with scallops at the upper ends. The fruit is a drupe, that is, a fruit like a cherry or plum. This fruit is acrid and ill-smelling, but the nut inside is edible.

This tree was introduced into this country about 150 years ago. While not common, it is to be found in almost every city in the United States. Two specimens are known to be in this city. One at the residence of John G. Boggs on West Union St. and the other on the Post Office grounds on East Mound St. The latter is a small tree and has been hampered by other trees growing too near it.

In the larger parks of the country, it is to be found in numbers and in Washington D. C. it is favored as a street tree, there being whole streets lined with this exotic tree.

Another Asiatic tree, the Empress tree or Paulownia, a native of Japan, is growing on the Post Office grounds. The name was given to it by eastern botanists at the insistence of Paul 5, Czar of Russia in honor of his daughter, Anna Paulowna.

The leaves of this tree grow very large, particularly on the younger trees, some of which may be more than a foot in diameter. Unlike most of the native trees, the leaf stems are hollow, resembling very much the leaves of the pumpkin vine.

The flowers, which precede the leaves in the spring, grow in pyramid shaped panicles of a pale violet hue with yellow stripes and spots and having a very pleasant odor.

In this latitude the tree is not altogether hardy. During the severe winter of 1917-18 this tree was frozen back to the roots, but the succeeding summer it threw out shoots twenty feet long. Since that time, it has grown to be a considerable tree as there have been no hard winters to kill it. The flowers, though, are likely to be killed by moderately cold winters, as they are formed in the previous season. This tree will seed itself, as several young trees have been found to the leeward, showing that the seeds are wind carried.

This species was brought from the far east about 100 years ago.

A third rare species is the Japanese Pagoda tree or Sophora Japonica. The only specimen I have ever seen is that one growing on the United Brethren parish lot on E. Main St. It is an oriental cousin to our flowering or yellow locust. The term Japonica indicates that it is a native of Japan, although it is to be found in China.

Its leaves are like our locust, being compound, while its flowers resemble the native tree. Its pods are somewhat unlike, as they are constricted between the beans. Its blooming season is in July while our species blossoms in April and

May. The wood of this tree is used to a great extent in the east for cabinet work. An infusion of the bark is used as a medicine. Even when being handled by workmen, they are affected by the touch and presence of this wood.

A few seedlings of this specie found growing under it have been planted by Safety Director L. T. Shaner on the Berger Hospital grounds.

However, I think teacher would fit him best of all.

Mrs. Myra Rader, 423 E. Main St., had a Wisteria tree that was so full of blossoms and were so large, that the tree actually had the blossoms draped on the ground. This was really a sight.

Mrs. Turney Pontius brought a blossom from her Paulownia or Empress tree to the Pickaway County Garden Club flower show this past weekend. It hasn't bloomed for awhile. This year it is beautiful. Most of our flowering trees have been putting on quite a show for us this spring.

Mrs. Loren Dudleson, Route 1, has a lovely double lilac in bloom. It is a lovely shade of lilac, which is most appropriate.

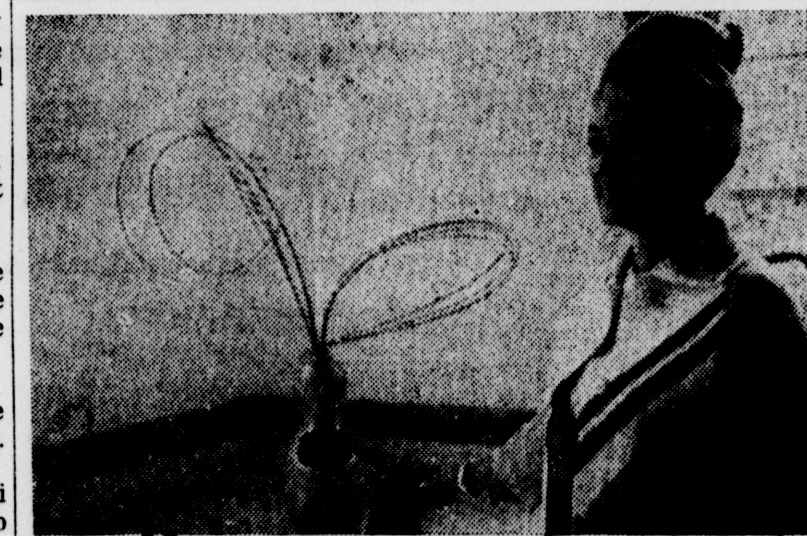

I understand Hartford Renick, Route 3, is quite an authority on African violets. He propagates them and has over a hundred.

ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — Authorities at the Eisenhower Center would like to know who left the gift of $100 pennies. The coins were found in two sacks about 10 days after the funeral of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

A slip of paper was inside each sack. One read: "To Ike, to the heart of the country and in love."

The other read: "To Kansas, to the heart of the country and in love."

Exile Alligators To Old Habitat

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — New York's Bronx Zoo is sending alligators to Florida—where they grow wild and occasionally wander into people's backyards and swimming pools.

But Dr. Wayne King, reptile curator in the public zoo in the Bronx, has some logic behind his banishment program. He says his alligators and crocodiles are growing so big—10 feet and more each—that they're staying out of their own areas of domicile. This is unpleasant because they have to share air-conditioned quarters with other tenants.

Birchers Lead Opposition To Sex Education In Schools

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

A major target in the nationwide campaign against sex education in public schools is SIECUS, a nonprofit organization that helps school authorities set up courses.

The Sex Information and Education Council of the U.S., with headquarters in New York, has been attacked from all sides in the controversy.

Often, opposition to SIECUS is the only common ground shared by grass-roots committees and right-wing groups fighting sex education.

The Rev. Billy James Hargis of the Christian Crusade calls it the "pornographic arm of liberal education."

In the May bulletin of the John Birch Society, Robert Welch suggests that SIECUS may be "the straw man that gets bowled over while 'compromises' are then worked out which allow quite similar programs to be introduced into the schools." He calls this a "typical Communist tactic."

Ron Mann, chairman of the Renton Parents for Responsible Education in Renton, Wash., said, "The SIECUS philosophy is all mixed up. They're hung up on sex."

In some localities "Dear Patriot" letter campaigns against SIECUS are being waged.

"We get 1,800 clips a month from small-town newspapers about us," said Dr. Mary S.
Calderone, executive director.
"It's a grass-roots attack on SIECUS and on me in particular.
We're the red herring which will be used to discredit boards of education."

She said the purpose of SIECUS is to "concentrate attention on relationships of sexuality to health, mental, social and physical well being."

At the request of school boards the group evaluates instructional material, suggests outlines for instruction and trains teachers to present matterial in a matter of fact manner appropriate to the age level of the children being taught. The aim is to teach, from a very early age, that sex is a normal, healthy function of the human body to be treated with respect.

Let's look at a situation where many of the elements found in opposition across the country appear at once.

The Renton School District near Seattle is planning to implement the first program of sex education from kindergarten to the 12th grade in the State of Washington—and one of the first in the nation. The Renton Parents for Responsible Education was organized to combat the move.

"We feel it's the parents' responsibility to teach sex to their children," said Ron Mann, chairman of the group and father of four children, three of them in the primary grades.

"Each child matures differ-ently, emotionally and sexually.
I think it's important to give them not more than they want to know but what they want to know."

The group is not opposed to traditional health education classes, but Mann says it does object to the children being used as "guinea pigs" in implementing a new program.

The group also opposes having sex education taught in the primary grades and to having it coeducational. "They plan to teach about menstruation in the fourth grade in a coeducational class," he said. "Boys at that age don't need to know this. We have to respect the girls' right to privacy."

The Birch Society and SIECUS also figure in the Renton story. Opposition to the SIECUS material proposed for use in the program is the point at which Mann's group agrees with the Birch Society.

A researcher at the Institute of Sex Research at Indiana University, founded by the late Dr.
Alfred C. Kinsey, says the controversy over sex education represents a generation gap in sexual attitudes.

James Elias, an associate sociologist at the institute, says persons over 40 grew up when talking about sex was taboo. To them, he said, discussing human reproduction in the classroom is tantamount to forsaking the Judeo-Christian tradition.
But to many educators and parents, sex education is natural and necessary in a society which now discusses sex openly.

Elias said a study of prepu-bercent boys he conducted showed 75-88 per cent list other boys as their principal source of information about sex. "Parents are not providing sex education," he said. "By making it taboo, you have an aura which entices children to try to find out about it."

George D. Fischer, president of the National Education Association, said he believed that "after the initial trauma of opposition, after the shock wave passes, responsible people will sit down and see we need more enlightenment about sex."

The NEA will be asked at its convention in July to pass a formal resolution endorsing sex education in the schools.

School Supt. Lloyd Peak of Watkins Glen, N.Y., said, "We are trying to improve the morality of our youth and we were doing quite well until the John Birch Society jumped in."

Peak said rumors circulated that, among other things, boys and girls were being encouraged to touch each other in dark rooms.

"This conspiracy is designed to foster suspicion and force the will of a few extremists on the total community," Peak said.

Companies engaged in producing materials for sex education classes are not immune from attack either.

About 30 mothers picketed the annual stockholders meeting of International Business Machines Corp. at Santa Monica, Calif., April 28.

those on sex.

Foreign Observers See U.S. Troubled By Poverty

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON (AP) — Americans are troubled at home and embarrassed abroad by the existence of hunger in the affluent
United States, says the London Times.

In another observation from abroad this week a British journalist wrote America "sometimes seems to be on the edge of a national nervous breakdown."

The London Times said in an editorial: "For some time the American social conscience has been increasingly disturbed over the clear evidence that hunger and malnutrition exist side by side with American afluence—and not just in small pockets of exceptional poverty or among the improvident and unemployable."

"This stands as a glaring moral reproach to American ideals, and is a correspondingly irksome embarrassment in American dealings abroad," the newspaper said.

The editorial acknowledged that President Nixon has promised a $1 billion program to end hunger "eventually," but it said higher welfare spending "cannot be reconciled" with the cost of present defense plans.

After a visit, Norman Mac-Rae, deputy editor of the Economist, described the United States as "the place where man's long economic problem is ending, but where his social problems still gape."

MacRae said Americans are "racked by the stretching to snapping point of too many of their temporary social tensions, so that this society which represents man's greatest secular achievements sometimes seem to be on the edge of a national nervous breakdown."

Frederick Ellis, New York correspondent of the Daily Express, had a lighter observation about Americans. He predicted that they someday will lose the ability to walk.

"A neighbor of mine reverses his car down his 50-yard drive to pick up his papers," Ellis said.

Ellis said he was "regarded as a freak" because he walks to a local bar. "Last week walking to the pub a police car stopped and the officer asked politely:
'Are you in trouble?' simply because I was walking," Ellis
said.

Exile Alligators To Old Habitat

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — New York's Bronx Zoo is sending alligators to Florida—where they grow wild and occasionally wander into people's backyards and swimming pools.

But Dr. Wayne King, reptile curator in the public zoo in the Bronx, has some logic behind his banishment program. He says his alligators and crocodiles are growing so big—10 feet and more each—that they're staking out their own areas of domicile. This is unpleasant because they have to share air-conditioned quarters with other tenants.

King is exiling seven of them.

Flagrant Medicare Abuses Are Probed

By JAMES R. POLK

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is probing whether as much as $40 million a year is being milked from the Medicaid program through abuses by doctors, dentists, druggists and nursing homes.

Senate hearings are planned shortly as a climax to a staff investigation of soaring costs, rich fees and possible fraud in the $5 billion, 38-state program of free health care for the poor.

An Associated Press examination of Medicaid operations in a half dozen states found:

—In New York, a dentist running a second-floor walkup clinic in an East Harlem slum got more than $400,000 in Medicaid payments over the past two years. In a court suit, the city has accused him of false billings and fraud.

—In Baltimore, nine doctors, a dentist, two pharmacists and an accountant have been indicted on charges of conspiring to defraud Maryland's Medicaid program. The probe was centered on a small, cramped drugstore that was the highest paid in the state last year at nearly $250,000. Above its door is a sign: "Health Is Our Only Business."

—In Southern California, investigators tell of dentures ordered in nursing homes for dying cancer patients, special shoes for bedridden invalids, and expensive prescription sunglasses for a blind man.

—A nursing home near Sacramento, Calif., has been accused in suspension proceedings of billing for patients after they died. In one case, records indicate the daily charge was doubled shortly after death.

—In New York City, health officials found one foot specialist touring nursing homes and collecting $2,000 a month from Medicaid for his services—clipping toenails.

The soaring price of both Medicaid and Medicare has prompted plans for the Senate Finance Committee to put both programs under the microscope at special hearings this summer when its staff finishes the probe now underway.

Medicaid, the federal-state program paying for private medical care for welfare recipients and other poor patients, was passed almost unnoticed in 1965 as part of the law creating Medicare for the elderly. Its costs have run far beyond predictions, climbing at almost a billion dollars a year.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., Finance Committee Chairman, charged there has been waste and extravagance in Medicaid.

None of the officials interviewed could pinpoint the exact amount because watchdog efforts by federal agencies have been both blind and toothless.

However, an extensive investigation by the California attorney general's staff has placed losses through abuses at $6 million to $8 million a year in that state alone—or 1 per cent of the California program.

The same 1 per cent ratio applied to Medicaid across the nation would mean losses of more than $40 million annually—a figure some observers think may be conservative.

One congressional investigator predicted the total could run into "hundreds of millions of dollars."

Officials agree the costs of Medicaid have skyrocketed since passage because patients could go to the doctor anytime they wanted without worrying where the money was coming from. And the doctors found themselves suddenly getting paid for cases that had been charity in the past.

The lack of restraint on how often patients go to the doctor—and the fact the doctor gets paid every time he sees them—has given birth to a new government catchword: overutilization.

It means too frequent medical care that isn't necessary.

Dr. Lowell E. Bellin, executive director of New York City's Medicaid program, says, "Anybody who commits fraud has to be pretty stupid. The sophisticated person who wants to take advantage of this program milks it through overutilization, not fraud."

Bellin added prosecutors have no interest in cases like the toe nail clipper on the nursing home circuit because he wasn't charging for services he failed to perform.

"He really clipped those nails," Bellin said. "But he was clipping the city simultaneously."

Prosecutors have been reluctant to bring cases where they would have to prove a doctor's judgment on heavy medical care was wrong. Instead, the fraud prosecutions have been limited almost entirely to pharmacy cases in Maryland, New York and California where prescriptions records are available as evidence.

The federal government let each state set up its own Medicaid program while paying for 50 to 83 per cent of the cost. The states decided what care to offer at the start, how to make payments and how to guard against abuses.

In most cases, the states have given only lip service to watchdog duties. Top federal officials concede that their policing of the hodge-podge of programs has been flimsy—and only now are they asking states to send in full reports on their surveillance methods.

Since many states have no real checks on their Medicaid payments, the states where scandals have emerged may not be the worst.

The state attorney general's investigation ordered by Agnew needed six months to sift nearly half a million prescription records of just one pharmacy firm in gathering the evidence to take before a grand jury.

Among the nine doctors indicted for conspiracy last month was Dr. Hollis Seunarine of Baltimore, top-paid Medicaid physician in the state for the last fiscal year at just under $50,000.

The two pharmacists and accountant also were charged with forging prescriptions and obtaining $68,000 by false pretenses.

Both pharmacists worked at Sav-On No. 1 Pharmacy, a small, narrow drugstore in a middle-class neighborhood. The store handled almost 70,000 prescriptions last year under Medicaid and received $245,497. It has been suspended from the program.

New York—Dr. Fred Fisher runs a 12-man dental clinic on the second-floor of a drab building in Manhattan's East Harlem. Most of the patients are welfare recipients.

It is a neighborhood of Puerto Rican immigrants, of iron grills guarding store windows at night, of Spanish-language signs on the precinct police station.

Since joining the program a little more than two years ago, records show, Fisher has received $402,975 in Medicaid payments.

In its answer to a suit brought by the dentist to try to halt his suspension from the program, the city asserted it has "clear and convincing evidence" that Fisher submitted "fraudulent and untrue invoices" for Medicaid payments.

Fisher declined comment to a newsman.

New York studies have found a rush of dentists to the ghettos since the Medicaid program began. Last year the city started requiring prior approval for dental treatment plans and claimed savings of $26 million. Still, the city's Medicaid payments to dentists totaled $82 million, compared to $38 million for doctors.

California—An exhaustive investigation by the state attorney general's office found millions of dollars were being drained out of California's Medicaid program, known as Medi-Cal, through "false claims, kickbacks and overservicing."

The report pinpointed kickbacks by pharmacists and X-ray technicians to nursing homes. It described inflated charges by druggists on prescriptions. And it said one physician-owned hospital gave a patient 160 blood tests in 16 days—all of them without any abnormal finding.

Criminal cases have been filed involving two pharmacies in Los Angeles suburbs and a firm in Santa Cruz.

A nursing home near Sacramento, the Rancho Cordova Convalescent Hospital, faces suspension from Medi-Cal on charges that it continued to submit billings for at least eight patients after they died.

So far California has suspended 26 doctors, dentists, druggists, optometrists, hearing aid dealer, and others.

Chief Deputy Atty. Gen. Charles A. O'Brien said, "The program is in bloody bad shape all over the country, and no one wants to admit it."

O'Brien said if doctors' groups and government agencies don't start pushing to "straighten out this mess, the public outcry is going to be so large that the good is going to go out with the bad."

Man Is Fined For Altercation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Judge Bruce Jenkins has fined Dr. William K. Allen $150 on three charges growing out of an altercation with police in a downtown restaurant.

The 53-year-old Negro physician, sentenced Wednesday, was convicted in an eight-day jury trial. He also was ordered to pay court costs expected to be about $1,000 per charge, but Jenkins suspended costs on two of the charges.

The jury convicted Allen of disorderly conduct, improper language and resisting arrest. No verdict was reached on a fourth charge of assault and battery on a police officer.

Riot Continues In Malaysia; Troops Patrol

Short Suspension Of Curfew Brings More Shootings

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Malays and Chinese fought for the third day in Malaysia's capital today. Malay troops and youths attacked Chinese during a suspension of the curfew, and a gang of Chinese youths armed with shotguns reportedly raided a Malay college and killed four or five students.

The government, which assumed sweeping special powers to deal with the bloody communal warfare, relaxed the round-the-clock curfew for three hours in Kuala Lumpur so people could buy food.

Eyewitnesses said Malay troops fired four or five shots into a group of Chinese shoppers during the suspension of the curfew. It was not known whether they inflicted any casualties.

There have been other reports of Malay troops firing on Chinese.

Bands of Malay youths were reported attacking Chinese passersby in several areas, and scattered incidents were reported in market and shopping areas as people flocked to stock up on food. The curfew was reimposed after the three hours.

About 1,500 police and 500 army troops patrolled the multi-racial capital of half a million people, trying to snuff out sporadic clashes. At times they appeared to have the situation under control. Then new outbreaks would occur.

Official figures this morning listed 42 persons killed since the communal battling began Tuesday night, but observers said the toll was much higher. Police sources said at least 100 had died.

Judges had earlier forbade the use of cameras or tape recorders in connection with judicial proceedings in the environs of the three courthouses.

Their amendment, signed Tuesday, extended the ban to specifically include the use of news cameras or radio and television news equipment within the environs of civil actions and grand jury sessions.

Judges Modify News Restriction On Proceedings

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Judges of the U.S. District Court for Northern Ohio have modified a December restriction on news coverage related to judicial proceedings in federal courthouses at Cleveland, Youngstown and Toledo.

The seven judges' amendment permits persons involved in court cases to be photographed and interviewed in special press rooms or on sidewalks previously included as being in courthouse "environs."

Judges had earlier forbade the use of cameras or tape recorders in connection with judicial proceedings in the environs of the three courthouses.

Their amendment, signed Tuesday, extended the ban to specifically include the use of news cameras or radio and television news equipment within the environs of civil actions and grand jury sessions.

Flagrant Medicare Abuses Are Probed

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is probing whether as much as $40 million a year is being milked from the Medicare program through abuses by doctors, dentists, druggists and nursing homes.

Senate hearings are planned shortly as a climax to a staff investigation of soaring costs, rich fees and possible fraud in the $5 billion, 38-state program of free health care for the poor.

An Associated Press examination of Medicare operations in a half dozen states found:

—In New York, a dentist running a second-floor walkup clinic in an East Harlem slum got more than $400,000 in Medicare payments over the past two years. In a court suit, the city has accused him of false billings and fraud.

—In Baltimore, nine doctors, a dentist, two pharmacists and an accountant have been indicted on charges of conspiring to defraud Maryland's Medicare program. The probe was centered on a small, cramped drugstore that was the highest paid in the state last year at nearly $250,000. Above its door is a sign: "Health Is Our Only Business."

—In Southern California, investigators tell of dentures ordered in nursing homes for dying cancer patients, special shoes for bedridden invalids, and expensive prescription sunglasses for a blind man.

—A nursing home near Sacramento, Calif., has been accused in suspension proceedings of billing for patients after they died. In one case, records indicate the daily charge was doubled shortly after death.

—In New York City, health officials found one foot specialist touring nursing homes and collecting $2,000 a month from Medicare for his services—clipping toenails.

The soaring price of both Medicare and Medicaid has prompted plans for the Senate Finance Committee to put both programs under the microscope at special hearings this summer when its staff finishes the probe now underway.

Medicaid, the federal-state program paying for private medical care for welfare recipients and other poor patients, was passed almost unnoticed in 1965 as part of the law creating Medicare for the elderly. Its costs have run far beyond predictions, climbing at almost a billion dollars a year.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., Finance Committee Chairman, charged there has been waste and extravagance in Medicaid.

None of the officials interviewed could pinpoint the exact amount because watchdog efforts by federal agencies have been both blind and toothless.

However, an extensive investigation by the California attorney general's staff has placed losses through abuses at $6 million to $8 million a year in that state alone—or 1 per cent of the California program.

The same 1 per cent ratio applied to Medicare across the nation would mean losses of more than $40 million annually—a figure some observers think may be conservative.

One congressional investigator predicted the total could run into "hundreds of millions of dollars."

Riot Continues In Malaysia; Troops Patrol

Short Suspension Of Curfew Brings More Shootings

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Malays and Chinese fought for the third day in Malaysia's capital today. Malay troops and youths attacked Chinese during a suspension of the curfew, and a gang of Chinese youths armed with shotguns reportedly raided a Malay college and killed four or five students.

The government, which assumed sweeping special powers to deal with the bloody communal warfare, relaxed the round-the-clock curfew for three hours in Kuala Lumpur so people could buy food.

Eyewitnesses said Malay troops fired four or five shots into a group of Chinese shoppers during the suspension of the curfew. It was not known whether they inflicted any casualties.

There have been other reports of Malay troops firing on Chinese.

Bands of Malay youths were reported attacking Chinese passersby in several areas, and scattered incidents were reported in market and shopping areas as people flocked to stock up on food. The curfew was reimposed after the three hours. About 1,500 police and 500 army troops patrolled the multiracial capital of half a million people, trying to snuff out sporadic clashes. At times they appeared to have the situation under control. Then new outbreaks would occur.

Official figures this morning listed 42 persons killed since the communal battling began Tuesday night, but observers said the toll was much higher. Police sources said at least 100 had died.

The program is now costing 10 times as much as original estimates for Medicaid three years ago. New Mexico became the first casualty of the program this month, pulling out when it ran out of money to meet its share of the medical bills.

Officials agree the costs of Medicaid have skyrocketed since passage because patients could go to the doctor anytime they wanted without worrying where the money was coming from. And the doctors found themselves suddenly getting paid for cases that had been charity in the past.

"The heavens burst open," said a mountain doctor who is now one of the highest paid in Kentucky.

The lack of restraint on how often patients go to the doctor—and the fact the doctor gets paid every time he sees them—has given birth to a new government catchword: overutilization.

It means too frequent medical care that isn't necessary.

Dr. Lowell E. Bellin, executive director of New York City's Medicaid program, says, "Anybody who commits fraud has to be pretty stupid. The sophisticated person who wants to take advantage of this program milks it through overutilization, not fraud."

Bellin added prosecutors have no interest in cases like the toe nail clipper on the nursing home circuit because he wasn't charging for services he failed to perform.

"He really clipped those nails," Bellin said. "But he was clipping the city simultaneously."

Prosecutors have been reluctant to bring cases where they would have to prove a doctor's judgment on heavy medical care was wrong. Instead, the fraud prosecutions have been limited almost entirely to pharmacy cases in Maryland, New York and California where prescriptions records are available as evidence.

The federal government let each state set up its own Medicaid program while paying for 50 to 83 per cent of the cost. The states decided what care to offer at the start, how to make payments and how to guard against abuses.

In most cases, the states have given only lip service to watchdog duties. Top federal officials concede that their policing of the hodge-podge of programs has been flimsy—and only now are they asking states to send in full reports on their surveillance methods.

Since many states have no real checks on their Medicaid payments, the states where scandals have emerged may not be the worst.

Instead, they are simply the states that have found them first.

Maryland—Thirteen indictments have grown out of a single citizen's complaint a year ago to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, then the Maryland governor.

The state attorney general's investigation ordered by Agnew needed six months to sift nearly half a million prescription records of just one pharmacy firm in gathering the evidence to take before a grand jury.

Among the nine doctors indicted for conspiracy last month was Dr. Hollis Seunarine of Baltimore, top-paid Medicaid physician in the state for the last fiscal year at just under $50,000.

The two pharmacists and accountant also were charged with forging prescriptions and obtaining $68,000 by false pretenses.

Both pharmacists worked at Sav-On No. 1 Pharmacy, a small, narrow drugstore in a middle-class neighborhood. The store handled almost 70,000 prescriptions last year under Medicaid and received $245,497. It has been suspended from the program.

Fair Skies Cover Much Of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fair and mild weather prevailed in a large part of the nation today, with thundershowers limited and crisp temperatures on the wane.

Severe thunderstorms rumbled across the South and parts of the Northern Plains Wednesday night, but more tranquil weather returned to both regions before daybreak.

Tornadoes dipped into portions of Texas and one was reported late Wednesday in northeastern North Dakota near Lakota. No damage or injuries were reported.

Large hail pounded scattered sections of the Texas Panhandle.

Cool air retreated over the Northeast but still produced some of the country's chilliest overnight temperatures in that region. Bradford, Pa., registered 28 well before dawn.

FIVE KILLED IN HIGHWAY HOLOCAUST—Smoke billows from a downtown intersection in Flint, Mich., after a gasoline truck and a car collided, killing five persons in the car. Five business places also were damaged extensively by the burning gasoline.

Man Sentenced In Armed Robbery

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — James Robertson, 19, of Warren has been sentenced to 18 years in prison for the armed robbery of a Cleveland savings and loan office.

U. S. District Court Judge Girard E. Kalbfleisch sentenced Robertson after he pleaded guilty to the $1,140 holdup of the Third Federal Savings & Loan Association in February.

Police Honor System Failure

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The cafeteria at the Maryland State Police headquarters has been ordered closed afternoons because an honor system involving 10-cent cups of coffee has broken down.

State Police Capt. G. R. Cole said the cafeteria had remained open afternoons without workers to enable officers to come in, drink coffee and leave their money on the counter.

But the cafeteria, which lacks the funds for full-time workers and cashiers, is being closed because auditors found out the number of dimes being left under the honor system didn't match the amount of coffee being consumed by the state troopers, Cole said.

Negroes Eye Independence

DETROIT (AP)—The Republic of New Africa, a black separatist organization, announced plans Wednesday to establish independent governments in sections of Cleveland and Detroit.

Richard Henry, midwest vice president of the group, said the new cities would be separate enclaves belonging to the republic's new nation its supporters hope to form from five southern states.

He said the Cleveland areas of Hough, Glenville, Central Mount Pleasant, Gladstone and Garden Valley would form a new city, under the plan.

The first step, Henry said, would be to circulate petitions asking residents to support the calling of a plebiscite on whether to secede from the union. Following such plebiscites, independent cities would be established in all northern urban ghettos, he said.

In Detroit, the areas to be marked out consists of the 10 legislative districts now represented by Negroes.

Fair Skies Cover Much Of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fair and mild weather prevailed in a large part of the nation today, with thundershowers limited and crisp temperatures on the wane.

Severe thunderstorms rumbled across the South and parts of the Northern Plains Wednesday night, but more tranquil weather returned to both regions before daybreak.

Tornadoes dipped into portions of Texas and one was reported late Wednesday in northeastern North Dakota near Lakota. No damage or injuries were reported.

Large hail pounded scattered sections of the Texas Panhandle.

Rainfall of 1 to 1½ inches washed parts of Minnesota, Alabama and Florida during the night. High winds frequently accompanied the thundershowers. Gusts up to 80 miles an hour lashed Watertown, S.D.

Cool air retreated over the Northeast but still produced some of the country's chilliest overnight temperatures in that region. Bradford, Pa., registered 28 well before dawn.

FIVE KILLED IN HIGHWAY HOLOCAUST—Smoke billows from a downtown intersection in Flint, Mich., after a gasoline truck and a car collided, killing five persons in the car. Five business places also were damaged extensively by the burning gasoline.

Man Sentenced In Armed Robbery

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — James Robertson, 19, of Warren has been sentenced to 18 years in prison for the armed robbery of a Cleveland savings and loan office.

U. S. District Court Judge Girard E. Kalbfleisch sentenced Robertson after he pleaded guilty to the $1,140 holdup of the Third Federal Savings & Loan Association in February.

Police Honor System Failure

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The cafeteria at the Maryland State Police headquarters has been ordered closed afternoons because an honor system involving 10-cent cups of coffee has broken down.

State Police Capt. G. R. Cole said the cafeteria had remained open afternoons without workers to enable officers to come in, drink coffee and leave their money on the counter.

But the cafeteria, which lacks the funds for full-time workers and cashiers, is being closed because auditors found out the number of dimes being left under the honor system didn't match the amount of coffee being consumed by the state troopers, Cole said.

Negroes Eye Independence

DETROIT (AP)—The Republic of New Africa, a black separatist organization, announced plans Wednesday to establish independent governments in sections of Cleveland and Detroit.

Richard Henry, midwest vice president of the group, said the new cities would be separate enclaves belonging to the republic's new nation its supporters hope to form from five southern states.

He said the Cleveland areas of Hough, Glenview, Central Mount Pleasant, Gladstone and Garden Valley would form a new city, under the plan.

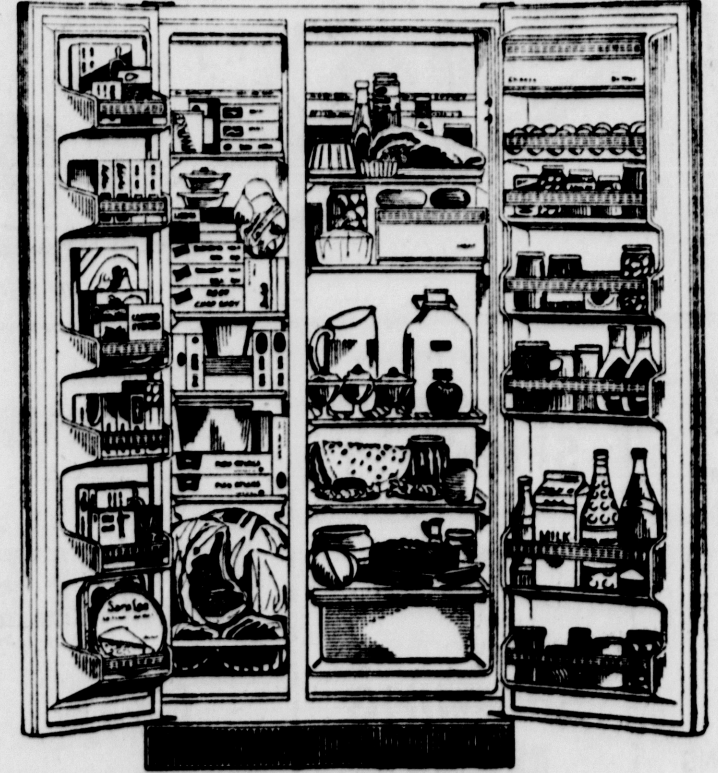

The first step, Henry said, would be to circulate petitions asking residents to support the calling of a plebiscite on whether to secede from the union. Following such plebiscites, independent cities would be established in all northern urban ghettos, he said.

In Detroit, the areas to be marked out consists of the 10 legislative districts now represented by Negroes.

A majority of the people of Laos are descendants of Thai Buddhists who were driven out of southern China by Kublai Kahn in the 13th century.

The Teen Center at Ashville (Old Zero Locker) has been closed and locked. Ashville city council agreed to the action when Mayor Hartley explained that no adults were interested in supervising the dances. Recent dances at the Teen Center have gotten out of hand, according to the mayor. Until a responsible group of adults pledge themselves to chaperone and a code of rules are adopted, the center will remain locked, according to the mayor.

Head Start Reviewed For PICCA Council

The Head Start program for Pickaway County was reviewed by Mike Flynn, PICCA director, for members of Pickaway Community Services Council at their monthly meeting Tuesday.

The recently-formed services council represents 27 social services agencies throughout the county. The organization was formed to serve as a clearing house for residents in need of service. The monthly meeting program features the head or representative of an agency who explains the organization's functions to other members of the council.

In the discussion of the Head Start Program, now in its fourth year in the county, Mike Flynn remarked on the noted growth of participation in this Community Action program. Enrollment in the school program is confined to kindergarten and first grade pupils and is designed to aid both parents and children of low income families.

Mrs. Georgia Dore, Ashville, will serve as director of Head Start this summer. She has been a teacher in the program for the past three years.

At the Monday luncheon meeting of Community Services Council, members voted to continue meeting through the summer on a regular monthly basis.

He estimated that the two high-rise structures would cost $50 million.

Seek Kidnapers
In Cleveland Area

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — An FBI search for a Cleveland man and woman wanted in connection with a Baltimore kidnapping has been described as "a dragnet operation."

"I have every available man on the job," Charles G. Cusick, special agent in charge of the Cleveland FBI office, said Tuesday of the search for Edward Lee Dull, 39, and Alvina Marie Spriggs, 20.

The two are believed to have headed for Cleveland after collecting a $10,000 ransom Monday night and freeing Anne Kathryn Jenkins, 22, a Baltimore social worker and daughter of an Iowa banker.

Urge State To Purchase Land Sites

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Purchase of land on both sides of the Statehouse for the erection of twin-tower, high-rise office buildings is being proposed by two Republican House leaders.

They say the state should act quickly to acquire the sites before someone else buys them.

Reps. Charles Fry, R - 9 Springfield, speaker pro tem, and Walter L. White, R-6 Lima, assistant majority leader, planned to introduce a resolution today urging the Legislative Office Building Committee and the Ohio Building Authority to acquire the sites.

The properties are now occupied by Loew's Ohio and Grand theaters on East State Street and the Columbus Chamber of Commerce Building and an adjacent building on East Broad Street.

Fry told newsmen Wednesday the state could use the sites as parking lots and would not have to construct the two buildings immediately.

He estimated that the two high-rise structures would cost $50 million.

The Columbus architectural firm of Kellam and Foley proposed the twin towers.

James Foley said the matching towers on the north-south axis of the Capitol would form a total government complex. He said the three buildings could be connected by underground tunnels.

Housing Program Implementation Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Implementation of a new housing program will be the object of discussion when state and federal officials meet here next Wednesday.

Political officials from the city to the state level will join Gov. James A. Rhodes for a symposium on housing. Representatives of the building industry, labor and finance people also will attend.

Borman Denies
He Will Seek Elective Office

HOUSTON (AP) — Astronaut Frank Borman says he has no plans to leave his present assignment and run for the U.S. Senate in Arizona.

Borman, director of a task force on advance space station designs, said Wednesday that contrary to rumors nobody had tried to persuade him to seek the seat of Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz. The move had been attributed to a group of Arizona Democrats.

Borman declined to say whether he was a Democrat or a Republican.

Kent State's Cage Coach Hits Recruitment Practices

By HAL PARIS
Associated Press Sports Writer
KENT, Ohio (AP) — Frank Truitt still retains a good sense of humor but his patience is running thin.

The likable Kent State basketball coach feels there is an urgent need to tighten regulations governing recruitment practices.

"The high school boys hold too many cards and the schools aren't protected enough," Truitt said. "But you can't put the heat on too much. We (the coaches) all make it hard on each other by being so persistent."

Truitt, in his third season at Kent, led the Golden Flashes to a 14-10 campaign, the best in 17 years at the northeastern Ohio college. His toughest losses weren't on the court — they came in the recruitment game.

A few weeks ago, 6-foot-8 Dan Perry of Lima Shawnee signed a letter of intent with Kent State and then signed one with Kentucky.

Last Tuesday, 6 - 7 Nick

Weatherspoon of Canton McKinley, a much sought All-Ohio cager, announced he would attend Illinois.

"That decision was a real blow," Truitt admitted. "Even to the last hour we thought we would get him."

So did Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor and probably others among the 300 colleges that reportedly wanted Weatherspoon.

"Weatherspoon impresses you because he has great humility. He reminds me of John Havlicek. He told me he had to go to Illinois because he wanted to prove himself before people who didn't know him."

Truitt said "it's getting a lot tougher" to get the good players with the good grades. Kent is a member of the Mid-American Conference and Truitt said "we haven't fared as well as we thought we might. Of course, a lot of these kids want to get away from their home area when they go off to college."

The Kent coach envisions several changes that could help alleviate the rigors of recruiting.

"I think we should eliminate the conference letter of intent and then move the national letter of intent deadline back from May 21 to May 1 or sometime in April. That still gives the coaches plenty of time to evaluate what they want and need."

Truitt also favors a proposal to limit the number of visits a high school senior could make to different college campuses.

"I think maybe four would be adequate. Now they can take as many trips as they can get."

He also likes the Big Ten's 10-day contract rule which gives a boy that length of time to sign a contract, once he has received it, or it becomes void.

"Sure, a lot of coaches never send a contract until they feel certain the boy they want will return it signed. But at least if you sent it early, you could find out quickly enough if the kid is interested. If he isn't, you can go on to someone else without waiting months to find out his decision."

Mets Come Alive, Bury Braves, 9-3

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Getting the hang of Phil Niekro's knuckleball was one thing for Ken Boswell and the New York Mets. Taking the sting out of George Stone's fastball was something else.

Boswell played a key role, with his bat and left elbow, Wednesday night as the Mets ruined Niekro's no-hit bid in the seventh inning, wrecked Stone's relief effort in a wild, eight-run eighth and buried the Atlanta Braves 9-3.

Niekro held the Mets hitless until Boswell opened the seventh with a triple off a "hanging knuckleball." Then, after Tommie Agee's two-run double tied the game in the eighth, Stone clipped Boswell on the elbow with a fastball, forcing in the go-ahead run and touching off a heated debate at the plate.

Cleon Jones' grand slam homer, J.C. Martin's triple and Stone's wild pitch capped the Mets' biggest inning in five years and sent the Braves reeling to their first setback in five games.

In other National League games, San Francisco blanked Pittsburgh 3-0 behind Juan Marichal; the Chicago Cubs edged San Diego 3-2 for their fourth straight victory; St. Louis nipped Los Angeles 2-1; Cincinnati topped Philadelphia 4-2 and Houston beat Montreal 3-1.

The Mets trailed 3-1, Boswell having scored in the seventh on Jones' ground out, when a third strike passed ball by rookie Bob Didier touched off the eighth inning fireworks.

Amos Otis reached first when the ball got away from Didier, who had been doing an excellent job of surrounding Niekro's flutballs. "If the kid catches the ball, it's a 1-2-3 inning," Braves Manager Lum Harris said afterward.

Bud Harrelson followed with a single, but Niekro gloved pinch hitter Art Shamsky's bouncer and threw to second — where shortstop Sonny Jackson dropped the ball.

"That was the turning point," said Mets pilot Gil Hodges.

Jackson's error filled the bases and Agee knotted the game with a double off the left field wall, finishing Niekro. Stone walked Ed Charles intentionally, reloading the bases, then fired an inside pitch that Boswell tried to duck.

The ball caromed a few feet in front of the plate and Boswell headed for first, clutching his elbow. But umpire Billy Williams called it a foul ball. The Mets argued vehemently and when Boswell displayed a welt on his arm, Williams reversed himself, bringing Harris out of the Braves' dugout to protest.

"I wasn't trying to fool anyone," Boswell insisted. "I can guarantee the ball hit my arm — and it hurt. It was a big decision for the umpire to make because it was the winning run. But he made it, and that's why he's a good umpire."

The jubilant Met fans were barely back in their seats when Jones brought them up again with the crusher — his first career grand slam.

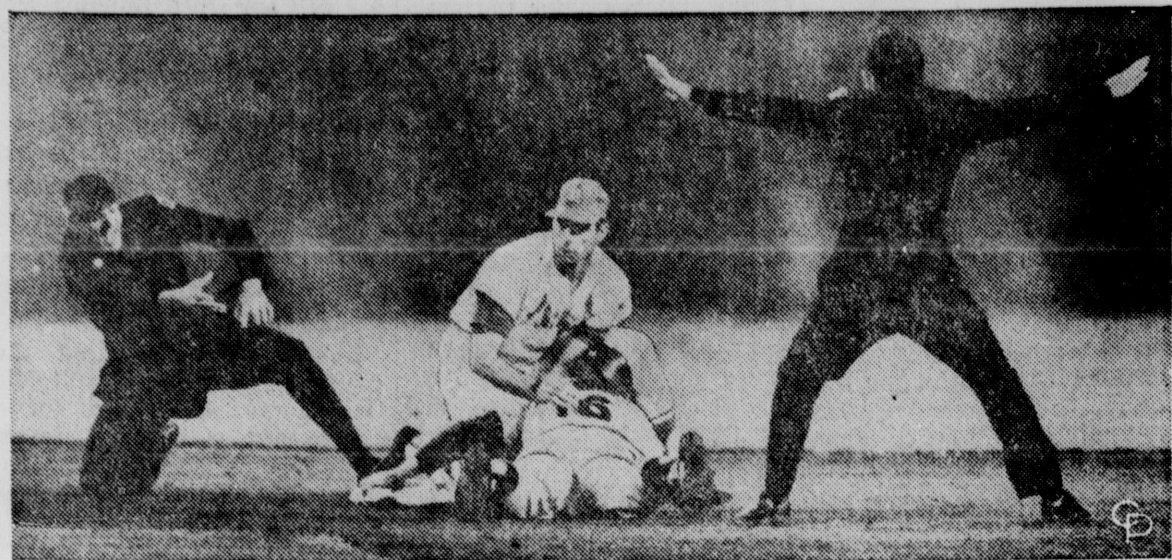

"I've never seen the complexion of a game change so fast," he said. "This was the best I've ever seen Niekro in my four years in the majors. He was in command all the way until he started to get his knuckler up in the latter part of the game."

"It wasn't in the game plan to wait that long," added Hodges, with a wide grin.

Dick Dietz tripled off Jim Bunning in the fifth before the Giants' ace singled to break a Jack Nicklaus Man To Beat In Colonial?

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, as usual, was one of the top candidates for the $25,000 first prize when he set out in the first round of the Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament today, but Big Jack was zeroing in on another objective — the U.S. Open.

"Don't misunderstand me," the long-hitting Ohio strongboy said. "I'm not overlooking this one. But you always point for the big four."

Nicklaus is one of four men to sweep all of pro golf's major titles — the U.S. and British Opens, the Masters and PGA. He usually considers it a bad year when he doesn't win one of them. He missed last year and, for a man who has won about all that can be won, is hungry for another.

"You never have any trouble getting up for those," he said.

The burly Nicklaus recently has had trouble with his game. He had an 80 in the Tournament of Champions last month and failed to make the cut two weeks ago in the Greater New Orleans Open.

But, he said, that's behind him. He took a rest last week, and it helped.

"I didn't play much," he said. "Just rested. I wasn't playing well for a while, wasn't driving well. But the time off seemed to help some. I'm hitting the ball pretty good, now. Things seem to be pulling together."

He shrugged off the effects of an elbow injury in an accident. "I don't think it'll bother me," he said. "By the time I swing, a few it'll loosen up."

CHS Shutout By Greenfield In 5-0 Tilt

The Circleville High School baseball team was shutout, 5-0, at Greenfield Wednesday in a South Central Ohio League baseball game.

The Tigers are now 1-6 in the South Central League and have a 3-8 record in all games played this year. Friday they host Washington C.H.

Tom Bowers was the losing pitcher last night. He hurled the first 4 2-3 innings, fanning three and allowing ten hits.

He was relieved by Randy Dresbach, who whiffed three and blanked the McClain team for the last 1-3 innings of the game.

Howland went all the way for Greenfield. A lefthander, he whiffed eight and scattered four hits. Mike Fuller's double was the longest blow for Circleville.

Greenfield scored three runs in the second inning and two in the fifth.

Prince Ready For Pimlico's Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — Class and desire are things all top thoroughbreds possess. But Majestic Prince has something extra going for him—Hazel Longden's upside-down horseshoe pin.

The wife of trainer Johnny Longdon said she wore it when Majestic Prince won the Kentucky Derby and that she will have it on Saturday when her husband sends Frank McMahon's unbeaten colt after the mile and three - sixteenths Preakness Stakes at Pimlico.

"I'll always wear it," the vibrant blonde said Wednesday while watching Johnny continue his preparation for the second leg of the Triple Crown in which Majestic Prince is expected to oppose seven other 3-year-olds including Arts and Letters, the Derby runner-up, and Top Knight.

"I had it made in 1943, the year Count Fleet, ridden by Johnny, won the Triple Crown," she said. "It has Count Fleet's picture in the middle, but the open end of the horseshoe is at the bottom and people said that was bad luck."

"Well, we've been pretty lucky for 26 years."

Although Longden never won a Derby, Preakness or Belmont Stakes after 1943, he won lots of other races before ending a 40-year riding career in 1966 with a record 6,032 wins. Then he turned his winning touch to the training end of the sport.

Getting the hang of Phil Niekro's knuckleball was one thing for Ken Boswell and the New York Mets. Taking the sting out of George Stone's fastball was something else.

Boswell played a key role, with his bat and left elbow, Wednesday night as the Mets ruined Niekro's no-hit bid in the seventh inning, wrecked Stone's relief effort in a wild, eight-run eighth and buried the Atlanta Braves 9-3.

Niekro held the Mets hitless until Boswell opened the seventh with a triple off a "hanging knuckleball." Then, after Tommie Agee's two-run double tied the game in the eighth, Stone clipped Boswell on the elbow with a fastball, forcing in the go-ahead run and touching off a heated debate at the plate.

Cleon Jones' grand slam homer, J.C. Martin's triple and Stone's wild pitch capped the Mets' biggest inning in five years and sent the Braves reeling to their first setback in five games.

In other National League games, San Francisco blanked Pittsburgh 3-0 behind Juan Marichal; the Chicago Cubs edged San Diego 3-2 for their fourth straight victory; St. Louis nipped Los Angeles 2-1; Cincinnati topped Philadelphia 4-2 and Houston beat Montreal 3-1.

The Mets trailed 3-1, Boswell having scored in the seventh on Jones' ground out, when a third strike passed ball by rookie Bob Didier touched off the eighth inning fireworks.

Amos Otis reached first when the ball got away from Didier, who had been doing an excellent job of surrounding Niekro's flut-terballs. "If the kid catches the ball, it's a 1-2-3 inning," Braves Manager Lum Harris said afterward.

Bud Harrelson followed with a single, but Niekro gloved pinch hitter Art Shamsky's bouncer and threw to second — where shortstop Sonny Jackson dropped the ball.

"That was the turning point," said Mets pilot Gil Hodges.

Jackson's error filled the bases and Agee knotted the game with a double off the left field wall, finishing Niekro. Stone walked Ed Charles intentionally, reloading the bases, then fired an inside pitch that Boswell tried to duck.

The ball caromed a few feet in front of the plate and Boswell headed for first, clutching his elbow. But umpire Billy Williams called it a foul ball. The Mets argued vehemently and when Boswell displayed a welt on his arm, Williams reversed himself, bringing Harris out of the Braves' dugout to protest.

"I wasn't trying to fool anyone," Boswell insisted. "I can guarantee the ball hit my arm — and it hurt. It was a big decision for the umpire to make because it was the winning run. But he made it, and that's why he's a good umpire."

The jubilant Met fans were barely back in their seats when Jones brought them up again with the crusher — his first career grand slam.

"I've never seen the complexion of a game change so fast," he said. "This was the best I've ever seen Niekro in my four years in the majors. He was in command all the way until he started to get his knuckler up in the latter part of the game."

"It wasn't in the game plan to wait that long," added Hodges, with a wide grin.

Marichal scattered four Pittsburgh hits and delivered the only run he needed with a fifth inning single while breezing to his fifth victory in seven decisions.

Seeing is believing but you'll have trouble making Ted Williams and Billy Martin believe what they saw Wednesday night.

still rubbing his eyes after watching Baltimore's Paul Blair climb the center field fence to rob Rod Carew of a game-winning home run.

Brinkman's DP single was one of eight Washington hits which still left the Senators empty-handed in their 1-0 loss to California. And to rub salt in Williams' wound, the Angels managed just three hits and scored the game's only run on a bases-loaded walk to Bubba Morton.

Blair had just about wrecked Minnesota with his bat, driving in five runs with a pair of homers and a single as Baltimore built up a 9-2 lead against Minnesota. Then the Twins closed to 9-8 and with a man on in the ninth, Carew hit what looked like a game-winning homer until Blair's leaping catch.

Elsewhere, Boston nipped Oakland 2-1, New York tripped Seattle 5-4, Cleveland edged Kansas City 3-2 in 11 innings and Chicago shut out Detroit 6-0.

The Circleville Slow Pitch Softball League begins play Sunday with four games scheduled.

Logan Elm Village and Circleville Merchants play at 1 p.m. on the main diamond. At 2:30 DuPont A shift plays DuPont CR and DL on the main diamond and Wardell's plays Continer Corporation of American on the small diamond.

Wardell's comes right back at 4 p.m., playing General Electric on the big diamond.

On Wednesday, Continer Corporation plays PPG Industries at 6:30 p.m., Owens-Illinois plays Team No. 10 at 8 p.m. and Circleville Merchants play DuPont CR and DL at 9:30.

Joe List fired a 39 to capture low gross honors in the Upper Lansdowne Men's League Wednesday and the Parbustars scored 16 points to take the first round lead.

Members of the Parbustars are Gail Leatherwood, Jack Hutchison, Dick Robbins and Jim Dawson. Low net honors went to Mark Leatherwood, who had a 34.

There are now 12 teams participating in the league and the schedule is being revised according to Hutchison. It will be posted in the clubhouse by this weekend.

bulpen to strike out the side after the Pilots had scored twice and had the tying run on second with none out in the ninth. Steve Whitaker homered for Seattle.

Jose Cardenal singled, stole second and third and then scored Cleveland's winning run on an error by catcher Ellie Rodriguez in the 11th inning as the Indians shaded Kansas City. Cardenal scooted home with the winning run after Jack Hernandez threw out Tony Horton. The fleet Indian outfielder slid in safely when Rodriguez bobbled the throw from first baseman Chuck Harrison.

St. Louis managed only two hits off Bill Singer and Jim Brewer, but made two fourth-inning runs stand up behind the clutch relief pitching of Joe Hoerner.

Joe Torre's single and Vada Pinson's sacrifice fly drove in the runs and Hoerner rescued winner Nelson Briles from a first-and-third jam with one out in the seventh.

The Cubs trailed 2-1 when Ernie Banks led off the ninth inning with his fifth homer. Nate Oliver followed with a double and, after an intentional walk, Willie Smith's pinch single knocked in the winning run, sending the first place Cubs five games ahead of Pittsburgh in the East Division.

Homers by Alex Johnson and Lee May, plus George Culver's tight ninth inning relief pitching, carried the Reds past Philadelphia, pinning the Phils with their sixth consecutive loss.

Culver replaced Jim Merritt with two on in the ninth, filled the bases with a walk and then stopped the Phillies cold.

Denny Lemaster fired a five-hitter for his first victory after five losses as the Astros topped Montreal on Jesus Alou's two-run homer in the eighth. Alou connected off Jim Grant following a two-out throwing error by Maury Wills.

Williams knew it wasn't Washington's night in the sixth after Frank Howard and Bernie Allen opened with singles. Ken McMulle flied out but Brinkman singled.

Howard zoomed around third but Morton's throw cut him down at home plate. Catcher Tom Egan was bowled over by the big man but bounced up and fired to third, catching Allen to complete the DP and take the Angels out of the inning.

In the bottom half, walks to Jim Fregosi and Roger Repoz sandwiched around a single by Jay Johnstone loaded the bases and Morton walked, forcing in the game's only run.

Blair's hitting had built an early Oriole lead but Minnesota rallied for five runs in the eighth to pull within one. Then Carew hit his screamer with a man on in the ninth.

"It was a homer," said Martin. "He made a sensational catch. He shouldn't have caught it. He climbed the fence after it."

"I thought it was gone," admitted Blair. "I was right up against the screen when I back-handed it. I went as high as I could go."

Tony Conigliaro drove in both Boston runs with a pair of timely singled and Ray Culp hurled a six-hitter, striking out 11 Athletics. The victory was Boston's ninth in the last 10 games and the loss ended a seven-game winning streak for Oakland.

Bobby Murcer drilled a two-run single in the seventh and Tom Tresh followed with a two-run homer in the eighth as New York halted a six-game losing streak by nipping Seattle.

College Students Tutor Elementary School Pupils

STUDENT TUTORS — Ten Circleville Bible College students are donating their time and talent to tutor children from the S. Court St. School. The college students provide the service to 18 students twice a week. Discussing their work are (left to right) Jim Pollard, Mary Jane Stewart, Vicki Karutter, Keith Kennedy, Anna Conrad, Brenda Hudley, Linda McCombs.

Circleville Bible College, S. Court St. School and PICCA (Pickaway County Community Action) have formed a tutoring program for grade school children.

Now two months old, PICCA first approached the Rev. Donald Brown, business manager of Circleville Bible College, about the project.

Brown enlisted college students interested in serving as tutors. Mike Flynn, PICCA executive director, then approached Mrs. Harry Kern, principal of S. Court St. School.

Mrs. Kern consulted with teachers and they came up with 18 students in need of help.

Since then, the 18 grade school children have received study help twice a week from the Bible College students. Currently there is one third grader, five fourth graders and 12 sixth graders.

Bible College students report that attendance has been good and that reading, writing and math have been the biggest problems.

One child remarked: "It's nice to have someone else to take your problems to."

The Rev. Brown commented that the program is of benefit to the Bible College students as well as the grade school children.

Mike Flynn, PICCA executive director, said "we are most happy to work with other organizations on a program like this one."

"HOPEFULLY, it will expand into a much larger program in the years ahead."

Bible College students involved in the program are Judi Dean, Columbus; Miss Jimmie Asbury, Westerville; Donna Smith, London; Brenda Hudley, Raymond and Evangeline Middleton, Grand Blanc, Michigan.

Sharp Vietnam Fighting Continues

SAIGON (AP) — While President Nixon was announcing his formula for ending the Vietnam war, thousands of U.S. troops battled the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese today in two widely separated sections of South Vietnam.

Paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division fought for a hill called Don Ap Via along the rugged Laotian frontier and just to the west of the A Shau Valley. After six days of heavy fighting, the Americans had not been able to drive the North Vietnamese from their bunkers honeycombing the 3,000-foot peak. The hill is believed to be either a regimental headquarters or a major supply base.

A series of fights in the border area during the past week has cost the North Vietnamese 125 killed, according to U.S. military spokesmen. They said 37

The fighting is part of a new allied drive—Operation Apache Snow—to choke off North Vietnamese infiltration corridors from Laos into South Vietnam. A force of nearly 3,000 American paratroopers, U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese infantrymen moved into the area last Saturday. Helicopters landed 2,200 of the Americans and South Vietnamese west of the A Shau Valley and close to the Laotian border in one of the biggest helicopter assaults of the war.

It's the sixth assault within a year on the A Shau Valley, the Parallel as a political or territorial boundary.

Nixon said, "We have no objection to reunification, if that turns out to be what the people of North Vietnam and the people of South Vietnam want; we ask only that the decision reflect the free choice of the people concerned."

Point 8 on the Viet Cong list was a ban against military alliances by North or South and would forbid defense treaties, bases or troops on their soil.

Nixon's statement: "We seek no bases in Vietnam. We seek no military ties."

The ninth Viet Cong proposal suggested negotiations for release of military men captured in the war and said the United States "must bear full responsibility for the losses and devastations it has caused to the Vietnamese people in both zones."

Nixon said arrangements for prisoner release would be made at the earliest possible time.

And he said the United States has been generous to those it has fought. "We have helped our former foes as well as our friends in the task of reconstruction. We are proud of this record, and we bring the same attitude in our search for a settlement in Vietnam."

The 10th point was supervision by agreement of withdrawal from Vietnam of troops and war supplies of the U.S. and its allies.

Nixon said an international supervisory body acceptable to both sides would verify withdrawals which he insisted would involve North Vietnam as well as the U.S.

biggest enemy supply base and staging area in South Vietnam. The objective is to prevent a buildup in the valley from which the Communist command could support offensives against Hue, 30 miles to the northeast, or Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city 80 miles to the south.

Far to the south, 45 miles northwest of Saigon, U.S. infantrymen of the 25th Division rode armored cars through the jungle trying to root out troops of the North Vietnamese 1st Division entrenched in deep bunkers.

Spokesmen said more than 100 North Vietnamese had been killed in the area during the past three days, while U.S. casualties were four killed and a dozen wounded.

While allied headquarters had no official countrywide totals of either allied or enemy casualties since a sharp upsurge in enemy attacks began Sunday, military sources estimated between 2,000 and 2,500 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops have been killed.

The sources estimated between 150 and 200 Americans had been killed this week and six times that number wounded. South Vietnamese sources said 323 government soldiers had been killed and 863 wounded.
